New Appeal Is Sent Out for UN

Eban Is Planning Talk With Dulles

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—The United States virtually washed its hands today of efforts outside the United Nations to win Israeli withdrawal from disputed Middle East territories.

After an all-out weekend try which the White House said brought no agreement, President Eisenhower bluntly told Israel it now has "the maximum assurance that it can reasonably expect at this juncture, or that it can be reconciled with fairness to others."

Makes New Appeal

That was a key phrase in an 800-word statement authorized by the President at his Thomasville, Ga. vacation headquarters. He wound it up with a new appeal for Israeli cooperation with the United Nations, declaring:

"The United States, for its part, will strive to remain true to, and support, the United Nations in its efforts to sustain the purposes and principles of the charter, as the world's best hope of peace."

Israeli officials said, however, their talks with American officials are not at an end. Despite the air of finality about American pronouncements, Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban said he expects to meet again with Secretary of State Dulles—"but no date has been fixed."

Door Still Open

While the main U. S. effort was shifting to the UN at New York city, Dulles' door still was open to Eban if his government wants to change its mind about holding onto Gaza strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area called Sharm El Sheikh.

Golda Meir, Israel's foreign minister, said last night Israeli troops would evacuate Sharm El Sheikh in an hour if the United States guaranteed free shipping to all nations in the Gulf of Aqaba.

In a nationwide TV appearance (ABC-College News Conference), she proposed three other possible solutions: (1) a similar guarantee by Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which border the gulf, (2) stationing of UN police forces at Sharm El Sheikh to prevent harassment of gulf shipping, and (3) an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Files Report

Eban filed a full report to Jerusalem last night. The embassy said it covered Eisenhower's statement as well as Eban's talks with Dulles during the week and particularly Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

At the UN today, America's UN Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was understood to have arranged to explain to African-Asian leaders how the United States feels about sanctions against Israel.

It was to avoid a showdown on this issue that Dulles proposed his two-part plan last Monday. Eban came back with a counter-proposal which the United States found just as unacceptable. Both plans were made public last night. The formal documents bore out what already had been reported of their substance:

1. That Dulles demanded

16 Days of Travel On Bridge Is Reported 29,591

Travel over the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge yesterday was more than 2,000 vehicles under that of a week ago Sunday, but the steady, daily flow in 16 days since the opening, has been enough to bring the total to 29,591, a report of the New York State Bridge Authority showed today.

Yesterday's total was 2,027 vehicles under the record total of 5,286 clocked on Sunday, Feb. 10.

Total week-end travel was 5,949 vehicles with 3,259 clocked Sunday, 1,106 on Saturday and 1,584 on Friday.

Record travel over the span on Feb. 10 was attributed largely to the fact that many residents of the area made their first trips in weather that was favorable throughout the day.

Total travel for the first week was 17,884 vehicles.

Probation Office Has $112,723 Collections

The amount of monies collected through the Ulster County Division of Probation continues to increase and during the past year a total of $112,723.82 was collected, according to the annual report of Chief Probation Officer Edmund U. Burhans.

This amount of over $12,000 more than the previous year. In 1956 there was paid in through the office for family support $111,022.40 and much of this money would not have been collected had it not been for the activity of the county probation office. Much of this money for family support would have necessarily been disbursed by the County Welfare Department in the form of public assistance. Payment of this money from private source also aids the morale of the dependents to feel that they are not a burden on the taxpayer.

Probation Officer Burhans reports the sum of $804.47 collected as restitution and $896.95 was received for physically handicapped children from parent's payments.

Four Revocations

In his annual report filed with the board of supervisors, Chief Probation Officer Burhans reports probation was revoked for only one female who was sent to Westfield State Farm, Bedford Hills, and probation was revoked for three male adults. One was committed to Clinton State Prison at Dannemora, one was committed to the Reception Center at Elmira and one was returned to Baltimore, Md., by warrant.

The adult probation case load shows 85 cases were continued from 1955 and 39 additional cases were received during 1956 and there were 8 cases transferred from other courts for a total of 132 cases. Of that number 44 passed from probation and six were transferred to other courts, leaving 82 cases at the close of the year 1956.

Misdemeanors Listed

In the misdemeanor classification seven males and one female faced the office for unlawful entry, three males for receiving stolen property, two males for third degree assault, twelve males were placed on probation under the Youthful Offender statute and there were four other probation cases received.

In the felony category all of the probation cases were males with rape and assault accounting for three cases, burglary for two, forgery for two, grand larceny for 2 and carrying weapons one case. The length of probation may extend for the statutory period of three years.

Six Boys Sent Away

During the year probation was revoked in the case of six boys who were committed to the New York State Agricultural & Industrial School at Industry.

In addition to the cases before the Probation Officer from the County court, probation is also administered through the office from Children's Court. There were 22 non-support cases continued from 1955, none were received during 1956 and two cases passed from probation.

During 1956 46 boys were placed on probation, 48 cases were continued from 1955 and two cases were received on transfer for a total of 96 cases. There passed from probation 24 boys and two girls and two boys were transferred to other courts, leaving a total of 70 boys and 5 girls still on probation at the close of 1956. Twenty adults remained on probation for non-support.

Other Offenses

Burglary and unlawful entry, accounts for 20 of the charges against children which resulted in probation, six were for other stealing, four for arson, automobile stealing and public in-

Two Payment Tax Due by March 18 To Get Deduction

Payment of Kingston taxes by those who pay in two installments is currently due between this date and March 18, it was announced today.

Those who pay the total tax by, and including, March 18 are entitled to deductions of one half of one per cent from the amount.

For those who pay in two installments, a two per cent delinquent penalty is charged between March 19 and April 9, inclusive, and a five per cent penalty, plus a $1 fee for notice, will be charged after April 10.

Second-half payments are due "net" by May 31. The two-per cent penalty time on that will be from June 1 to June 20, inclusive, and the five-per cent plus the $1 notice fee will be charged on and after June 21.

Tax bills were mailed late this year because of delays in the Common Council of action on the 1957 budget.

Many Expected At Meeting on Parking Garage

A large attendance is expected at the public meeting in the Court House on Wall street at 8 p. m. Tuesday at which proposed plans for a multi-story parking garage will be considered.

George Svirsky, chairman of the parking committee of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, will preside. A representative of one of the firms manufacturing equipment for such garages will be present and explain his system and its advantages.

Mr. Svirsky pointed out that this meeting is called solely for the purpose of discussing the multi-story parking garage proposal. It will be for information only with no discussion of parking meter fees or any other traffic and parking problems.

He also pointed out that although his Chamber of Commerce committee is sponsoring the meeting a separate, private corporation would be organized to construct and operate the garage. The reason why parking facilities of this type are recommended will also be brought out at the meeting. Mr. Svirsky invites and urges everyone interested to attend.

Tiano Is Elected As State Guild VP

Charles J. Tiano, president of the Kingston Newspaper Guild, was named first vice-president of the Empire State District Council of the American Newspaper Guild, Sunday at the annual election meeting at Rochester.

Thomas M. Murphy of Rochester was re-elected president and M. Michael Potoker, of the Newspaper Guild of New York, was designated secretary-treasurer.

Other Officers

Other officers named were Charles McCarthy, Utica, second vice-president, and James Gallagher, Albany, third vice-president. The Empire State Council membership includes locals at New York city, Kingston, Beacon-Newburgh, Albany, Utica, Rochester, Niagara Falls, Jamestown, and Hudson county, N. J.

Increased exemptions for state income taxes were advocated unanimously at the two-day convention. The Council endorsed the proposal for higher exemptions originally drawn up by the New York State CIO Executive Board as the only "just and equitable means" to reduce the tax burden for many citizens.

Terms of Proposal

Under the terms of the proposal, exemptions for a single individual would jump from $1,000 to $1,500 for a married couple from $2,500 to $3,500, and from $400 to $800 for each child.

In other action, the Council announced its "continued opposition" to pending legislation before the state legislature seeking to repeal or amend Stock Corporation Law 71.

Under this law, employes of any defunct corporation, could

$35 State Tax Cut Is Likely Barring Hitch

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Barring some last-minute hitch, New Yorkers will be allowed again this year to deduct up to $35 from their state income tax bills.

A one-year renewal of last year's 40-million-dollar cut was virtually assured when the legislature's Republican leadership quietly introduced its tax-reduction bill last Wednesday.

Escapes Notice

Largely because the measure was filed without fanfare, it escaped general notice in the 300 bills submitted that day and was not identified as the GOP "program" bill until yesterday.

Although Republican leaders had pledged to continue tax relief, they had not committed themselves to any amount. Introduction of the bill eliminated the last major element of doubt.

The measure is identical to the Republican "compromise" bill that Gov. Harriman signed last year. The Democratic governor already has called for a renewal of the 1956 cut and is considered certain to sign the new bill.

Other Matters

In other developments:

1. The legislature's Republican majorities pressed forward on three fronts with other "program" legislation — affecting town government, industry and farms.

2. New York city's Democratic Mayor, Robert F. Wagner, urged changes in the permanent personal registration law that he said would make it "less cumbersome and less costly" to the city.

In the past, the Republicans missed no opportunity to point up their tax-reduction moves.

Hearing Held Spotlight

When questioned as to why there was no announcement on the latest move, a GOP spokesman pointed out that the bill was introduced on the same day as the annual budget hearing. The hearing held the Legislative spotlight last Wednesday.

The spokesman maintained also that the Republican majority leaders had indicated clearly their intention to continue tax abatement.

The bill was introduced by William MacKenzie of Allegany county, chairman of the Assembly ways and means committee, and Sen. Henry Wise of Watertown.

Returns Due April 15

It would allow taxpayers to deduct 15 per cent of the first $100 of tax due and 10 per cent of the next $200. Returns are due April 15.

Meanwhile, the Legislative leaders, Sen. Walter J. Mahoney and Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck, announced that bills would be introduced this week to provide a more flexible form of government for first-class towns.

Towns achieve first-class status when they reach 10,000 population. Towns of more than 5,000 population may vote to become first-class towns.

Under the GOP bill, the residents of first-class towns could vote to become "urban towns." This means they could take on a governmental system similar to larger communities—with the town supervisor acting as chief administrative officer directing a variety of town departments.

The voters may elect to place a town manager at the helm.

Heck and Mahoney said the

Prison Assn. Backing Youth Court Changes

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—The Prison Assn. of New York recommends retention of an amended version of the Youth Court Act.

The association asked in its annual report yesterday that the Legislature, now reappraising the act, adopt amendments proposed by the temporary State Commission on the Courts, which drafted the measure.

The amendments would modify provisions on secrecy of records and proceedings, remove many misdemeanors from youth court jurisdiction and change some procedures. Commission proposals for the changes have not overcome all objections to the act, scheduled to go into effect April 1, 1958.

Not State Agency

The 113-year-old prison association is not a state agency but is authorized by law to inspect penal institutions. It must report annually to the legislature.

In its 112th report, the association made new and renewed prior recommendations for changes in the physical plant and administration of the penal system.

The report called for:

Pre-parole camps as "shock-absorbers" between prison and community life for prospective parolees.

Establishment of a girl's reformatory at the State Training School, Albion.

A reception center at New Hampton, Orange county, primarily for New York city youths, who now make up 65 per cent of those entering Elmira Reception Center.

Study Methods

A study to find better methods of housing 1,000 prisoners over 65 years of age, most of them now in maximum security institutions, such as Sing Sing and Clinton prisons.

A training academy for correction department personnel.

The Youth Court Act was scheduled to take effect Feb. 1 of this year. The legislature deferred the effective date after the measure was criticized by law enforcement, judicial, other governmental and newspaper groups.

Complaints were on grounds of secrecy provisions, cost and possible difficulty in administering the act.

Some opponents have called for repeal of the legislation, rather than amendment.

Other Recommendations

The postponement allows study and action by the 1957 and 1958 legislatures.

The prison association also recommended:

Continued and intensified research on treatment of sex offenders, narcotics addicts and alcoholics.

An adult reception center where prisoners would be classi-

Driver Pays $75 On Drunk Charge, 2nd Case Pending

One of two drivers arrested over the weekend on charges of driving while intoxicated was fined $75 plus revocation of his license in city court today.

The sentence was imposed upon William Michael Dubetsky, 31, of 18 Cedar street, Beacon, who was arrested early Sunday on Broadway.

Kenneth Jones, 51, of 71 Greenkill avenue, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of driving while intoxicated after an accident at Abruyn street and Delaware avenue.

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today put the case over until Tuesday to permit him time to obtain counsel, and he was admitted to $200 bail.

Almost Hits Police Car

Officers Gilbert Gray and Everett Emmick reported at 1:40 a. m., Sunday that a car driven by Dubetsky nearly hit them in a patrol car at Broadway and West Chestnut street. They turned in pursuit and caught the car on Broadway near Hoffman street, where, they said, it had hit a parked car.

Jones was arrested by officers Thomas McGrane and Anthony Turck after his car had allegedly struck a car owned by Henry Filiatmuit, of Converse street, while it was parked near 93 Abruyn street, at 7:16 p. m., Saturday, police said.

Attorney Joseph Hill represented the district attorney's office in city court today.

Blaze Is Worst in Missouri

Spread of Flames Traps Aged Folks

Warrenton, Mo., Feb. 18 (AP) — Grim-faced men poked through the smouldering ruins of an old folks home today for the bodies of at least 70 persons who died in the blazing funeral pyre within minutes yesterday.

The searchers, working in spots cooled off by streams of water, had found 16. A deadly stench filled the air. Smoke and steam continued to rise from the ruins.

155 at Home

Seventy of the 155 inmates, including 45 women, were reported missing in the fast-spreading fire. A ripping explosion followed. One eyewitness said the entire building was aflame in three or four minutes. Another said about 15.

Authorities were baffled by the speed with which the flames raced through the two-story brick building.

The fire, probably the worst in Missouri's history, brought quick demands for state legislation that would tighten safety regulations for nursing homes and institutions for the aged.

Approved Home

The home had been approved in recent inspections for fire hazards.

The charred bodies were buried in a pile of twisted iron beds, plumbing fixtures, brick and mortar in the basement.

Searchers moved about one ton of debris to locate each body. Some, all but cremated, were so badly burned they were put in cardboard cartons little more than a foot square.

Complete Collapse

The building went down by floors. The roof fell in. The second floor followed and it all collapsed into the basement.

Sounds of pumps could be heard extracting water from the ruins to aid the cleanup job.

It was mostly a pick and shovel job.

But when the crews spotted a body they used their gloved hands to dig it out.

The ruins were cooled by blasts of water. Workers then went into the isolated section for their grim task. When it got too hot, they moved on.

None of the 70 inmates reported missing had turned up overnight to further confirm the estimated death toll.

Officials felt most of the Sunday visitors managed to escape

Missing Nurse's Sister Claims Call From Florida

Swanquarter, N. C., Feb. 18 (AP)—Sheriff Charles J. Cahoon said today he had not "closed the books" in the mysterious disappearance of a New Jersey nurse Feb. 9 from a doctor's yacht although a sister of the nurse had told him she had talked with the missing woman by telephone.

The sheriff said he would await further developments in the vanishing of Mrs. Mary Ann Scales, 33, of Trenton, N. J.

Cahoon confirmed an earlier report that he had talked by telephone with the sister, Mrs. Marie McDonald, of Bordentown, N. J. He quoted Mrs. McDonald as saying the call came from Florida although she did not know from what place.

"She told me she knew it was her sister, and would swear it was her voice," he declared.

However, when questioned early today about a statement attributed to him that the search for Mrs. Scales would be called off, he said, "I don't know about that yet."

He commented that he did not know what further steps would be taken pending developments.

Mrs. Scales had been the object to a widespread search since she supposedly disappeared near Ocracoke Island from a 34-foot $18,000 yacht of Dr. James T. Dodge, 46-year-old general practitioner of Trenton, N. J.

The doctor and nurse, sepa-

Minister's Wife Is Killed In Car Mishap Near Warsaw

A former resident of this city was one of two women killed Sunday in an automobile accident near Warsaw, N. Y., and her husband, a Protestant Episcopal minister was reported in "fairly good" condition today at a hospital there.

The dead were: Mrs. Alice Rainer, 45, of Attica, daughter of Andrew J. Moffat of this city, and Mrs. Phoebe Stattler, 59, also of Attica, the driver of one of the cars.

The Rev. Mr. E. G. Rainer, 50, the driver of the other vehicle, was brought to Wyoming County Community Hospital, Warsaw, where his condition today was described as "fairly good."

Police said the two cars collided head-on about seven miles northwest of Warsaw during a brief snow squall.

The Rev. Mr. Rainer, ordained two weeks ago, was driving to the Holy Apostle Church, Perry, where he was to have given his first sermon, it was reported. He is also on the teaching staff at Attica State Prison.

Besides her husband and father, Mrs. Rainer is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mildred M. Black of Kingston, and a nephew, Charles Fatum.

Agree on Pact to End ILA Strike

Members Must Ratify Contract; Local Issues Problem

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—New York waterfront employers and the striking International Longshoremen's Assn. (Ind.) reached agreement last night on a pact to end the five-day tieup of ports from Maine to Virginia by 45,000 dockworkers.

"This contract ensures waterfront peace along the entire eastern coast from Hampton Roads, Va., to Portland, Maine," said ILA counsel Louis Waldman.

The actual back-to-work movement, however, is conditional on membership ratification of the proposed three-year contract and settlement of thorny local issues in several ports.

New York Is Pattern

Hassles over local port conditions in Boston, Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., kept local union officials and employer groups in various stages of negotiations. At Philadelphia, both sides were reported stalemated and 'still very far apart."

They, nonetheless, were expected to fall in line quickly once the 25,000 longshoremen in the Port of New York accept terms of the new contract. As in past waterfront strikes, the "pilot" pacts negotiated in New York have set the pattern for the entire east coast.

Will Urge Acceptance

ILA officials were prepared to urge acceptance of the contract. The union's executive committee is scheduled to meet today to set the date for the referendum.

Waldman signaled the end of the costly dock tieup by announcing a "meeting of minds" with the New York Shipping Assn., representing 170 shipping and stevedoring firms. The two groups have been negotiating on-and-off since August.

"This means, that subject to union ratification, the strike is over," Waldman declared.

Alexander Chopin, chief negotiator for the employers, said "we don't want any longshoremen to think he's getting nothing . . . it is the most generous contract in waterfront collective bargaining anywhere."

Wage Boost Included

"It will cost, over its duration, $56,474,000, with $38,000,000 going for wages alone and $7,000,000 for welfare," he said.

Chopin's statement brought this retort from ILA President William V. Bradley:

"Whether we got nothing or something, I don't know, Mr. Chopin. But it sure took us a long time to get it. It is a good agreement. We will try to get the men to accept it."

Included in the tentative contract is a 32-cent hourly wage boost, spread out over a three-year period. An 18-cent hike is effective the first year with seven-cent raises for each of the succeeding years. The present basic dock worker's wage is $2.48 hourly.

Pension Benefits

The new pact provides also for improved vacations, holidays, welfare and pension benefits and other work conditions.

Bradley said no union policy has been set toward getting the dockworkers back on the job in New York yet. Ratification plus

West Hurley Garage Burns, Firemen Save Other Nearby

A three car garage on the Robert Peterson premises at West Hurley was destroyed by fire early this morning but prompt and efficient work by the West Hurley fire department saved adjacent buildings, including a garage on the Clarence Ostrander property. The Ostrander garage, standing only a few feet away, was scorched by the flames.

The Peterson property is rented by Frank Rockwell. Jack Rockwell, a brother, returned home shortly before mid-night and put his car in the garage. About 2 a. m. Clarence Ostrander was awakened by a horn blowing. On investigation it was found to be in the Rockwell garage. Mr. Rockwell was awakened and on opening the garage door found his brother's car in flames. A second car in the garage was saved.

West Hurley firemen, under Chief Lewis McNally, responded and after extinguishing the fire in the car hauled it out, preventing the gas take from exploding. Hurley was summoned at 2:30 a. m. to send a water truck when the Ostrander garage and chicken coop was threatened and Chief Kenneth Cudney responded with a number of firemen.

The three car garage was practically destroyed but adjoining property was saved through good work by the firemen. The fire apparently started in the Jack Rockwell car, Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburgh stated.

Reorganize Division

Ft. Riley, Kan., Feb. 18 (AP)—The 1st Infantry Division here is undergoing reorganization into a pentomic division. It is the first regular army infantry division to go from the bulkier, slower three-regiment organization into the faster-moving, smaller five-combat unit make-up geared to fight atomic as well as conventional warfare. DUTCH TREAT FOR FARMERS—Netherlands engineers have designed this small helicopter for use as an aerial beast of burden on the farm. Weighing 450 pounds, it's powered by ram jet engines at the tip ends of the rotors and uses low-cost kerosene for fuel. Frame is of tubular metal, and the chopper has four fuel tanks. Said to be so stable that it maintains flight position with operator's hands off the controls, the only "luxury" touch on the machine is a windscreen.

END OF AN ERA—A P-51 Mustang, right, makes one final pass over Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio, as an F-100 jet's exhaust keens for the passing of propeller-driven fighters in the USAF. Henceforth, all fighters will be jet-propelled. The P-51, pride of Uncle Sam's World War II air armada, will take its place beside other famous planes in the Air Force Central Museum at the field. The F-100 jet fighter is the Air Force's newest operational jet, and recently became the first plane to crack the speed of sound in level flight.

Marilyn's Husband Is Indicted on Contempt Charges

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—Playwright Arthur Miller, husband of actress Marilyn Monroe, was indicted today on two charges of contempt of Congress.

The indictment stemmed from Miller's refusal to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities the names of fellow writers with whom he admitted attending Communist party meetings in 1939 and 1940.

Miller denied in testimony to the committee June 21, 1956, that he had ever been a Communist or under Communist discipline, but admitted he had been associated wth a number of Communist-front groups.

The Pulitzer Prize winning playwright told the committee he "would not support now a cause dominated by Communists."

In refusing to name persons with whom he attended Communist party meetings, Miller said: "My conscience will not permit me to use the name of another person and bring trouble to him."

At his New York residence, Miller said he had "expected" the contempt action.

Asked whether his wife was upset by the action, he replied: "Nobody is very overjoyed."

Investigate 2-Car Mishap on Rt. 32

Kingston state police are still investigating a two-car collision late Saturday afternoon on Route 32 at DeWitt Corners in which two persons were admitted to Kingston Hospital.

Reported in "apparently good" condition today were Mrs. Myrtle Lorenzen, 45, of New Paltz, and Edward C. Hurd, 29, of Box 152, Lake Katrine.

Also injured in the accident, which occurred at 6:15 p. m., was Delancy Lorenzen, 50, of New Paltz.

Mrs. Lorenzen reportedly suffered lacerations of the eyes, cheeks, chin, abrasions of the nose and possible chest injuries.

Mr. Hurd suffered lacerations of the forehead and scalp, abrasions of the knees and possible concussion.

Mr. Lorenzen received abrasions of the legs and chest injuries.

Trooper Robert Chura reported that Mr. Lorenzen was proceeding west on Route 32 in a 1952 sedan when a 1951 sedan, owner and operator unknown, traveling south on Route 32 in the wrong lane, skidded on icy pavement "due to excessive speed" and struck the Lorenzen car in the left side.

Mr. Hurd was in the unknown vehicle, either as driver or passenger, Trooper Chura said. The car had an Ohio registration, it was reported.

No Agreement

"prompt and unconditional" Israeli withdrawal from the areas captured in last fall's fighting; pledged to seek stationing of UN police forces in Gaza and Sharm El Sheikh, and to "exercise the right of free and innocent passage" by sending an American ship into the gulf; but "the first requirement is that forces of invasion and occupation should withdraw."

2. That Eban applauded the spirit of the proposal but said "no effective steps were taken" to stop Egypt from discriminating against Israeli shipping; called for "a precise guarantee" of free gulf access or assurance that UN forces would patrol the gulf coast until a peaceful settlement; denied any basis for returning Gaza to Egypt and insisted it be left in Israeli civilian hands backed by a police force; and asked for clarification on how the United States feels about re-opening the Suez Canal under conditions still banning Israeli use of it.

Eban was noncommittal late yesterday when he emerged from Dulles' home after an hour-long talk. He had talked there for 70 minutes on Saturday and for 80 minutes at the state department on Friday—the same day Dulles flew to Thomasville for urgent consultation with Eisenhower.

A focal point will be the United Nations General Assembly meeting which opens at 10:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

4 Die . . .

Dutchess county sheriff's office said Mr. Trendley was proceeding east around a curve when his car skidded on icy pavement and went out of control, crossing the highway and smashing head-on into a station wagon operated by Mr. Travis.

The station wagon was smashed back about 30 feet as a result of the impact. A sedan behind the station wagon, proceeding in the same direction, hit the rear of the Travis vehicle, according to Sheriff Close. The sedan was operated by Mr. Strattman.

The Trendley car continued its progress after smashing into the station wagon and also struck the Strattman vehicle, it was reported.

Sheriff Close said a light snow had been falling and the road was icy.

Waiting for Inquest

Dr. Allen Larkin, assistant Dutchess county medical examiner, is withholding cause of death until after an inquest, it was reported.

It was reported that Mrs. Haynes, who also teaches at Arlington Central School, was riding in the Travis station wagon.

Mr. and Mrs. Strattman reportedly escaped without injury although their infant daughter was killed.

Mr. Travis was a Fourth Degree member of Council 304, Knights of Columbus, a member of the American Legion, American Chemical Society, the American Society of Lubrication Engineers, the IBM Country Club and the Holy Name Society of Holy Trinity Church, Poughkeepsie.

Travis Survivors

He is survived by his father, Charles A. Travis, Poughkeepsie; a sister, Mary Charlanne, OP, of the Sacred Heart Convent, Raleigh, N. C., and a brother, John R. Travis of Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. Travis is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Cloonan, and four sisters, Virginia, Laurette and Frances Cloonan and Mrs. Gerard Fallon, all of New York city.

She taught French in Arlington Central for two years. Mrs. Travis was a member of the St. Francis Women's Guild, Poughkeepsie.

Double Funeral

A double funeral for Mr. and Mrs. Travis will be held at 9 a. m. Wednesday from the Darrow Funeral Home, 39 South Hamilton street, Poughkeepsie, thence to Holy Trinity Church at 9:30 a. m. where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of their souls. ## 16 of 17 Bodies since no inquiries had been received. Just how many were there probably will never be known.

Missouri Gov. James T. Blair in Jefferson City today called the State Nursing Home Inspection Law "completely inadequate."

He said he would ask the legislature today or tomorrow for a better one. Blair said a thorough investigation of the tragic fire would be made.

Survivors of the tragedy were given a breakfast of soft boiled eggs, oatmeal, bread and coffee or milk in their temporary quarter's in the Home's Administration Building. The food was cooked in the high school cafeteria, about two blocks away.

Mrs. Bernice McDaniel, a nurse's aid who was on the second floor when the fire broke out, said she could recall only two Sunday visitors on her floor. She didn't know whether they escaped.

Mrs. McDaniel, 42, said she and Mrs. Alta Floyd were on duty when her 10-year-old daughter called out "fire." All three escaped unhurt.

"We made our way down the stairs and out the crowded front door," she said. "We didn't have an opportunity to rescue any of the patients. They were all bedridden."

Mrs. McDaniel, resting at her Montgomery City, Mo., home where she was "terribly shaken up," said after reaching safety she "heard a terrific explosion."

She said there were seven nurse's aids, janitors and kitchen workers on duty at the time of the tragedy, which was all over in minutes.

"The whole building was in flames in just three or four minutes," John D. Barada, a 34-year-old hardware operator, said. He was one of the first to reach the scene.

County Coroner F. H. Knigge estimated the death toll "from 70 on up." The state highway patrol, in reporting 70 inmates unaccounted for, did not include employes.

Firemen from 25 nearby communities, townspeople and attendants rushed into the burning building and helped bedridden inmates and the injured out before flames thwarted further rescue attempts.

Shortly after the fire's start, a muffled explosion shot flames and smoke billowing into the air, visible more than 30 miles away.

A crowd of 1,000 collected quickly and watched firemen attempt to quell the flames which turned the home into a black shell in short order. National Guardsmen directed traffic in the town and its outskirts. Highways were choked with cars of sight-seers.

Holding Services

It started off as a pleasant Sunday afternoon. Relatives were visiting with inmates. Some 50 of them were believed to have been in the building when the fire struck at 3:45 p. m. EST with lightning-like speed. Not all of them had been accounted for.

The Rev. Walter H. Schwanie, a Lutheran minister, was holding services in a first floor room of a dormitory for 22 patients and 11 visitors.

The congregation was singing the hymn, "What A Friend We Have In Jesus," when they heard someone shout, "fire!" The visitors and the Rev. Schwanie helped the patients, two of them in wheel chairs, flee the flames.

The fire reportedly started in a hallway nearby. The operator of the home, Woodrow O. Sullivan, said he had no idea what caused it. Authorities said they were puzzled over how quickly flames enveloped the 65-year-old building.

Missing Nurse's

rated from their spouses, had been cruising southern waters together.

Dr. Dodge said he went below and retired about 8 p. m. Feb. 9 and left Mrs. Scales on deck. He said she was gone the next morning.

Cahoon quoted Mrs. McDonald as saying that Mrs. Scales "wanted to know how her little girl was getting on. The sister said she could tell that Mrs. Scales was very much upset and sick. Mrs. Scales told her not to try to get in touch with her anymore."

At Raleigh, James W. Powell, director of North Carolina's State Bureau of Investigation, said he planned to ask New Jersey authorities "to ascertain what facts they could in connection with the apparent reappearance" of the nurse.

Investigate Wreck

Erie, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP)—Officials of the New York Central railroad today began an investigation into the second train wreck within nine days on its multi-million dollar electronically-controlled main line. Twenty-five cars of a 100-car NYC freight en route from St. Louis to New York left the tracks yesterday on the outskirts of Erie, blocking both eastbound and westbound traffic. A railroad spokesman estimated the damage at $100,000.

Probation Office

toxication accounts for three each, sex offenses and mischief accounts for two cases each and receiving stolen property, ungovernable charges one each. There were also four placed on probation for illegal possession of use of firearms. All of the above were boys.

Once again Chief Probation Officer Burhans calls attention to the need for additional office space where intake service and case work interviews may be held in pirvate. These interviews are now held in the front office of the county judge where no privacy can be had.

In his report acknowledgement of assistance and cooperation with the probation office is given various agencies, county and city offices, law enforcement officials as well as the State Department of Correction, Division of Probation.

It was a major defeat for opponents of the legislation who have followed a strategy of seeking to delay action. Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.), the subcommittee chairman, announced the vote was 4-2.

legislation was developed by town officers and other persons familiar with the problems of fast-growing suburban areas.

Business Council

The leaders announced also that a bill would be introduced to establish a 24-member small-business advisory council to the joint legislative committee on the state's economy. The intent is to give small businessmen a more direct voice in legislative affairs.

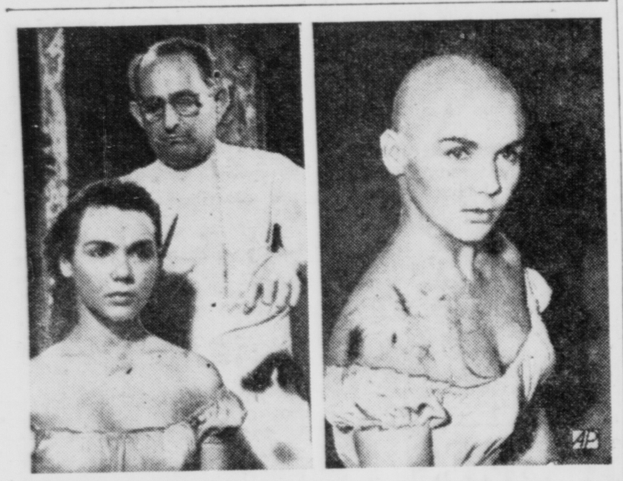

The committee, which has been studying the problems of using atomic power in industry, also proposed modifications in the workmen's compensation law to cover employes of atomic industries.

The temporary State Commission on Irrigation advanced two bills for study only at the 1957 session — and possible passage next year. The measures would set forth rules and regulations governing use of water resources for irrigation of farm crops and provide for irrigation districts, similar to sewage districts.

Wagner proposed several amendments to the PPR law that would affect only the city and others that would have statewide affect. The city council has voted to put PPR into effect this year.

On a statewide basis, the mayor proposed to relax the mandatory requirement for a biennial door-to-door check of registrants. Instead he would make the canvass permissive, except that checks would be mandatory if any member of a local board of elections requested them.

For the city only, he proposed changing the Oct. 1-12 registration period, which conflicts in some instances with Jewish religious holidays. Wagner would set the dates as Sept. 6, 7, 9-14, 18 and 21.

Harriman Shocked in Visit To Decontrolled Buildings

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman inspected the living quarters of a widow and her five children in an east Harlem tenement yesterday and described the situation as "outrageous."

The occupant, Mrs. Sarah Barnes, told Harriman she was paying $80 monthly rent for a tiny, two-room apartment she shares with her children. The woman, a Negro, said she shared a stove, not in her apartment, with three other families.

Harriman also visited the quarters of James Rhyan in the same building (at 61 East 126th street) Rhyan, a negro taxicab washer, said he paid $13.75 a week for a one-room unit that houses his wife and their five children.

The east Harlem visit was part of a tour the Governor made to rental units in New Rochelle, Glen Cove and Astoria, Queens.

To Check on Rent Control

Harriman said the purpose of the tour was to "focus attention on rent gouging" and to shed light on conditions that exist in converted dwellings where there is no rent control.

Robert C. Weaver, state rent control administrator, and his assistant, Edward Davis, accompanied Harriman. Also in the touring party was State Sen. Joseph Zaretzki. He and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan, both of New York city, sponsored the Harriman administration's pending proposal to restore rent control to converted buildings.

Harriman said that his visit showed "no real conversion" but rather "outrageous conditions." If the houses were put back under rent control, the governor said, "the rent administrator would see to it that they were brought back to reasonable standards."

Not Optimistic

In an appearance on the WRCA-TV program "Citizens Union Searchlight," Weaver said he could not take an "optimistic view" about passage of the Harriman rent control proposal.

"After all," he said, "the opposition (Republican) party has the majority in the Legislature."

Weaver said the reworded administration proposal would not affect more than 10,000 apartment dwellers.

The bill is specifically designed to aid owners of one and two-family houses to "bring them up to parity with apartment house owners," he said.

Because of tight housing conditions, Weaver said, "I cannot possibly envision decontrol in New York city."

"If we had a depression tomorrow," he continued, "of course families would start doubling up and we would have an awful lot of vacancies."

No Royal Visit

London, Feb. 18 (AP) — The Foreign Office denied today London newspaper speculation that Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh would visit America later this year. "There are no plans for a royal visit to the United States or to Canada at present," a foreign office spokesman announced.

Two Men Are Held On Unemployment Checks Charges

Two local men were arrested today for alleged violation of the state labor law on charges dealing with unlawful collection of unemployment checks.

Richard Bullock, 27, of 29 East Union street, was arrested at 11:40 a. m., by officers George Dougherty and Charles McCullough, and Mayo Nixon, 51, of 7 Canal street, was booked at police headquarters by Sgt. Grover S. Hoffay at 12:40 p. m.

Bail was fixed at $50 for Bullock, and Nixon was paroled for city court hearing because he appeared of his own volition at police headquarters. A third arrest was expected later today on a like charge.

Killed in Chase

New York, Feb. 18 (AP) — A 16-year-old boy was killed and his companion seriously injured yesterday when their stolen car struck a tree. Bronx police said they were attempting to flee. Killed was Gregory Selian of the Bronx. An emergency police squad used acetylene torches and crowbars to extricate the driver, Robert Riccio, also 16 and of the Bronx, from the wreckage. Riccio's legs were smashed, police said. Police said the auto went out of control and struck a tree south of the city line near suburban Pelham Manor to end an 80-mile-an-hour chase through heavy Bronx traffic.

Trapped Man Rescued

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 18 (AP)—Frantic rescue workers today freed a semiconscious electrician after he had been trapped for more than four hours in the quicksand-like coal dust in the coal chute of an industrial plant. Winfred Welborn, the trapped man, was taken to Rex Hospital in Raleigh, suffering from shock and chest injuries, the extent of which could not be determined immediately.

ANOTHER QUICKIE DIVORCE?

Following the pattern of some European Communist parties, the U. S. Communist organization has voted in convention to sever its link with the Moscow line.

This will hardly elevate the party's status in the eyes of most Americans.

In the first place, however much controversy may have attended the making of this decision in convention, there is no way of knowing that it is not a deception advised by Moscow itself.

It would not be the first time Moscow's long-distance branches have sought to give a false impression that they have broken ties with the Kremlin.

But even if the move is genuine, it doesn't make the U. S. organization any more desirable as a political entry in our national life.

It has never been a party in the normal sense of an organization seeking by legitimate means to gain power under a system it reveres and would try to perpetuate. Its purposes are the distortion of ordinary electoral processes and the destruction of democracy.

Luckily for America, it has never made headway toward this goal.

Its numbers, so far as the FBI can detect, are small. Even including its sad little band of camp followers doesn't swell the total markedly.

This does not mean U. S. Communists do not constitute a danger. We know from the nation's espionage history that they do. Hard-core members have been practicing Soviet agents, on various levels, for long years.

Men who have performed such service for a foreign power are permanently beyond the pale of American political life.

No matter what they may decide about their present relationship with Moscow, we can never forget that it was much too close before and may still be.

Politically the U. S. Communist party must be forever an outcast, if not an outlaw. It has no proper place in our political society. And surely it will never find the ingenuity to earn itself a place.

HOE FOR THE SEA

Anyone who doubts that man is still a hunting creature has only to think back to his last meal featuring sea food. Almost certainly, the fish he ate was the fruit of capture rather than culture. In this respect, seafood differs from almost everything else we eat.

Man cultivates plants in great abundance and variety to supply his grains and fruits and vegetables. The great bulk of our meat for the table is the result of animal husbandry. But virtually all our food from the sea is harvested—that is to say, captured—in its wild state.

This will change. The time will come when the waters of the earth, like the land, will be cultivated for their food. For some years, experiments along this line have been conducted. Recently D. B. Finn, director of the fisheries division of the United Nations Food Organization, said this:

"Nations will be forced to turn their attention to the sea and its products for the animal protein. We are still hunting the wild stock. We must substitute husbandry for hunting."

Noting that the world's booming population "is throwing a heavy strain on agriculture and epecially animal protein raising," Finn predicted that in the future food will come largely from the sea. This may be something of an exaggeration. But don't be surprised if, someday, you should hear farmer Brown practicing sea chanties.

REMOTE CONTROL

In an Ohio city police issuing tickets for overtime parking attach an envelope addressed to the police department. It invites motorists to mail in the fines and save themselves a trip to city hall.

However, it doesn't give them much opportunity to explain why they parked too long, or to try reaching someone who has influence.

DEATH ON FIRST AVENUE

Dr. Joza Brilej, Yugoslav Ambasador to the United Nations, was blithely driving his car west on 66th Street in New York. He went through a red light; he bumped into another car; he went up on the sidewalk, killed Mrs. Ruth La Bartunek who was gently minding her own business but who was pinned against a building by this Yugoslav Ambassador's car which he was driving.

Dr. Brilej was quite sorry and sent some emissaries to the La Bartunek family to ask if he could contribute to the funeral expenses. Beyond that he had no responsibility because he is entitled to diplomatic immunity by which is meant that he lives in our midst under extraterritoriality and is not subject to our laws.

It is legal for him and for a few hundred other people connected with the United Nations to go through red lights. The police cannot arrest him because he has diplomatic immunity. He can bump into another car and damage it but nothing can be done about that; he cannot even be sued for damages because he is not subject to our laws. He can kill a woman, a mother of five children, but he cannot be arrested for murder or for reckless driving; the police may not investigate whether he was drunk or sober when he lost control of his car; the police may not even inquire as to whether he had a license to drive a car. He is a big shot, an Ambassador and enjoys extraterritoriality which includes the right to kill a woman going into a grocery store.

Of course, a man may be a diplomat and a gentleman, too. That has happened. Such a person would obey the traffic regulations of the place where he happened to be stationed because a gentleman does not take advantage of his position. But it is too much to expect of the folks who have been thrown into high position by war and revolution that they would even know the meaning of noblesse oblige. So they go through red lights. They park their cars in front of fire hydrants. They double park and triple park to the inconvenience of tax-paying Americans and now one has actually run down and killed an American woman. He killed her on a sidewalk as she was walking into a store.

It is an easy-going, soft people that takes that sort of thing lying down. There was a time when Americans were less refined and when somebody's fist would have settled this question of diplomatic immunity. What happens to all these heroes in our Westerns which millions follow every day on television, these heroic characters who protect womanhood and motherhood and virtue? Do they not inculcate a sense of obligation to stand up for what is right? Or must we let these frisky Ambassadors imperil our wives and children while they break every traffic law with cars bearing DPL license plates? DPL, indeed.

The least the State Department can do is to notify the Yugoslav Ambassador that the streets of New York Cty are closed to him. He can remain in the United Nations building as long as Tito wants to keep him there, but he has committed a homicide on New York streets and the streets are closed to him. Of course, the State Department will do no such thing because its personnel is made up of diplomats who do not speak rudely to diplomats and who believe in extraterritoriality because when they go to other countries, they live by it.

But Tito did not always practice it and as I recall, when our Ambassador to Yugoslavia was Richard C. Patterson, Jr., Tito was rude to him and to his lovely wife and nobody made much of a fuss about that because, I presume, it was expected that Tito would be rude. That was before Tito was kicked out of the Cominform by Stalin and turned his face westward to get a cool billion of the American taxpayers' dollars.

May I suggest to Senator Green and Representative Gordon of the Senate and House Committees dealing with foreign affairs that they might hold public hearings into the misconduct of foreign officials in New York. They would get an earful and the public would discover that when the striped pants come off, some of these fellows are not better than they were before the revolution.

MUSIC IN TREATMENT

Although music has been used as an aid in treatment in one form or another for thousands of years, scientific study of the relation of music to healing started about 1900. Music is no longer used to cast out evil spirits but the use of background music as an aid to physical medicine, dentistry, the induction of general anesthesia, and operations performed under local, spinal or regional anesthesia is well known.

Important as this and other passive uses of music therapy are, an even more important aspect of this form of treatment is found in active participation by the patient. Such a program finds its greatest usefulness in the treatment of patients with mental illnesses, but it may also be extended to a variety of other patients. Trained music therapists are being sought on an ever-increasing scale by the more progressive general hospitals to aid in general rehabilitation programs.

For example, 15 miles from Boston's Beacon Hill, a dozen men and women one afternoon in December took part in a New England tradition that is over half a century old. They gave a 45-minute concert of English hand-bell ringing before a sizable audience in Westwood Lodge, a private sanatorium for patients with nervous and mental disorders.

It was no routine affair for the musicians, ranging in age from 18 to 79 years. One was an alcoholic; others were suffering from deep depression, psychoneuroses and schizophrenia. What made the occasion special was that some of the patients, somehow, were responding to the tuned bells when other musical instruments and treatment had failed to crack the shells enclosing their personalities.

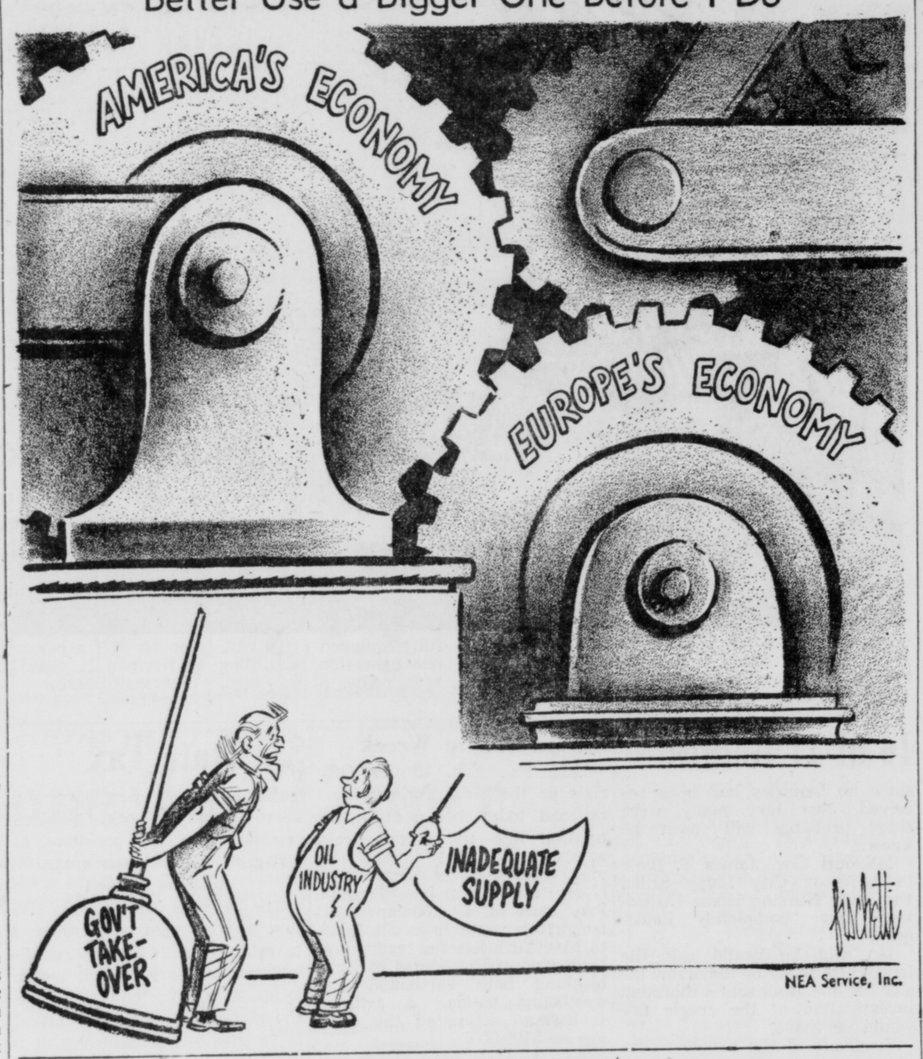

The bell ringing at Westwood Lodge, is but an echo of worldwide music that is being sounded again and again for its value as a medical aid. In the Juliana-Cord Tuberculosis Sanatorium in the Netherlands, 24 men and women suffering from tuberculosis of the bone lay flat on their backs as they presented a harmonica concert. At Denver, Colo., a six-year-old boy played "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," the first piano piece he mastered early in 1955 after an attack of polio that left him paralyzed from the neck down. On the advice of a physician, his music teacher Eva V. Welbourne placed the boy's arms in special slings attached to his armchair and pressed down each little finger on the piano keys until at last, after four months, the child's face lit up with the first notes of his own effort. Mrs. Welbourne has devised 20 methods by which students whose upper limbs are variously incapacitated can play the piano. They may use one finger, their elbows, their fists, their knuckles. For arthritics whose hands are clenched, she placed a pencil between the fingers or a potato within the painful grasp as the key striker.

What happens when music—not in itself a cure—is used as a medical tool? For the bedridden patients with tuberculosis in Holland, the blank and boring ceiling scene vanished in the melody of hundreds of brass reeds. Bell ringing patients in the Massachusetts sanatorium tend to develop confidence within a group, willingness to accept responsibility, and a music concentration that pushes aside thoughts of their personal problems. And in Denver, Mrs. Welbourne says of her piano students: "They become less handicapped than the man or woman who has two hands and ten fingers and does nothing constructive with them."

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA) — Glamorous as they sound, the formal White House parties are pretty conservative shindigs. Only alcohol served, for example, is one glass of wine for toasts. This is one of the reasons why three guests at the recent white-tie dinner for the Nixons and the Cabinet threw private cocktail parties before the event. There were three night-cap parties after the dinner, too, They've stopped announcing what the menus are at White House dinners, also. They're basically all the same and we dont's want people to think that we do monotonous entertaining," a White House insider explains.

SEEKING RELIEF from the recent heavy dose of the white-tie affairs of the inauguration, state visits and White House receptions, Rep. Keith Thomson (R.-Wyo.) and his wife Thyra threw a shipwreck costume party other night.

Rep. Charley Teague (R.-Calif.) sported a faded blue T-shirt which started the evening with a small hole in the middle. Everyone he tallked to was unable to resist the temptation to tear the hole larger, and before the evening was over, he would have gotten awfully burned if the sun had been out.

Rep. Phil Weaver (R.-Neb.) wore a pair of army boots dating from the Battle of the Bulge, trousers he uses for painting and a Scotch highlanders cap, a gift from the Duke of Edinburgh.

The worst-looking thing Rep. John Henderson (R.-Ohio) could find to wear, he admitted, was a brilliant orange tie which his mother-in-law had given him for Christmas.

At the height of the gaiety, which included dancing and singing, a terrific Chinese buffet dinner was served. Each course was something you could eat with your fingers so there was no grappling with chopsticks.

THE RECENT White House reception for the judiciary and military branches of the government stirred up a protocol rhubarb, by the way.

Supreme Court justices and their wives were allowed to enter the Executive Mansion by the front door whereas the rest of the crowd went in through the East Wing where the coat checkrooms are located.

This tidbit of seniority recognition thrown to the Supreme Court angered wives of lower-court judges who figured they were just as good as anybody else.

A couple even threatened not to attend, but their attitude got them nowhere. It's just too much of a traffic jam to bring everybody through the front door and then steer them to the coatrooms.

WE REPORTED last week that the wife of Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore) lost her cookbooks in the mail. Well, Capt. Billy Johnson, director of the navy's feeding program, read about it and took pity.

So a couple of days ago he went out to Mrs. Ullman's home and presented her with the Navy's official cookbook as a personal gift.

Trouble is, each recipe is figured for 100 persons.

"That's perfect for a congressman's wife," says Mrs. Ullman, who's an expert cook. "I've often had to serve that big a crowd."

REPUBLICAN switch:

It was no problem for Meade Alcorn, new Republican national chairman, to find a place to live here.

He not only took over retired Len Hall's job, but he moved right into his apartment at the Sheraton-Park.

GORDON GRAY, the new director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, has a special telephone on his desk for use when the President wants to summon him in a hurry, and that's the way Gray wants it.

When Gray was secretary of the Army, Ike was Army Chief of Staff. In this relationship Gray had an inter-com box on his desk with a button which could summon Ike to him instantly. But as Gray explains:

I had been a private in the Army too long in World War 2 and the name of Eisenhower had come to mean too much. I never had courage to push the button which would summon Ike. When I wanted to talk to him I walked into his office."

ANY DAY OF THE WEEK the most delicious lunch to be eaten in town is served in Defense Secretary Charlie Wilson's private dining room in the Pentagon. Estaban U. Torres, a Navy CPO, runs it and could get a job managing any hotel restaurant in the world if he wanted to.

For example, Deputy Secretary of Defense Reuben B. Robertson entertained visiting Crown Prince of Iraq Emir Abdul Ilah the other afternoon in Wilson's absence. Here's what Torres served, sending the Prince away raving about the food:

French onion soup, celery, olives, radishes, melba toast, roast tenderloin of beef, baked Idaho potato, Spanish rice, French green beans, mushroom gravy, avocado salad, Parker House rolls, strawberry Bavarian ice cream, coffee, mixed nuts, chocolate mints and dates.

Precedent Seen Favoring Brownell for Court Post

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 18—President Eisenhower has an interesting dilemma on his hands in filling the vacancy on the Supreme Court of the United States caused by the retirement of Justice Stanley Reed.

Shall the President again appoint someone with judicial experience? Shall he select a man with experience as a practicing lawyer? Shall he select someone from the Middle West, as is being suggested, because no one who hails from that region now is on the highest court?

Two of those categories fit Attorney General Herbert Brownell. He is an able lawyer with many years of successful practice before the courts and he was born and brought up in Lincoln, Neb., and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. President Eisenhower already has appointed to the Supreme Court two men with judicial experience and is reported, therefore, to be leaning toward the nomination of Attorney General Brownell because of his wide knowledge of Federal legal problems.

An Old Route

Precedent also can be cited for appointing an attorney general. More than ten per cent of all the justices appointed to the Supreme Court from its inception have served first in the Department of Justice.

President Jackson appointed Attorney General Roger Taney in 1836 to be Chief Justice.

President Buchanan appointed Attorney General Nathan Clifford in 1858 to be Associate Justice.

President McKinley appointed Attorney General Joseph McKenna in 1897 to be Associate Justice.

President Theodore Roosevelt appointed Attorney General William H. Moody in 1904 to be Associate Justice.

President Wilson appointed Attorney General J. C. McReynolds in 1913 to be Associate Justice.

President Coolidge appointed Attorney General Harlan F. Stone in 1925 to be Associate Justice, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed him in 1941 to be Chief Justice.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Attorney General Franklin Murphy in 1940 and Attorney General Robert H. Jackson in 1941 to be Associate Justices.

President Truman appointed Attorney General Tom C. Clark in 1949 to be Associate Justice.

Another instance that really belongs in the same class was the appointment of Solicitor-General Stanley Reed in 1938 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Ten Out of Ninety

This adds up to ten Justices out of the entire ninety that have served since 1789, but in the last 100 years the percentage of appointees from the Department of Justice has been 16 per cent and in the last fifty years it has gone up to more than 22 per cent.

Has the Background

The main reason why Presidents have inclined frequently to the idea of appointing an Attorney General is that this official more than any other man in the Federal government usually has a grasp of all the legal problems confronting the governments. Thus in the last four years Attorney General Brownell has had to weigh the merits of disputes in every controversial field ranging from anti-trust to civil rights. He brings to his present post an experience gained in five terms in the Legislature of the State of New York with its variety of state problems. He also has acquired during his term as Attorney General a specialized knowledge of the difficulties growing out of the congestion in the Federal courts.

Judicial experience is helpful, but most Presidents have chosen to look to men in other branches of public life—either Attorneys-General of Governors or Senators or members of the House of Representatives with a background of law practice—though President Franklin D. Roosevelt seemed to favor law school professors.

Good Records

Virtually all the men who came from the Department of Justice, though without previous experience on the Federal bench, have made good as Supreme Court justices. Roger Taney was one of the great Chief Justices in history, and Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone will rank high, too, as his decisions are put in the perspective of time. Few lawyers will dissent from the statement that Justice Jackson was a truly able judge and that Justice Stanley Reed made a significant record.

Attorney General Browell will be fifty-three years old on Wednesday of this week. He is regarded as fair-minded and objective. From the days when he was editor-in-chief of the Law Journal at Yale Law School, an honor that comes usually to a high-standing student, he has been deeply devoted to the basic principles of modern law with little tendency to stray toward the adventurous school of thought in constitutional interpretation. His ardent advocacy before Congress of broader legislation in the field of "civil rights" may hurt him with some of the Southern Democrats, but this would be offset by the votes he would get for that very reason from the "liberal" Democrats. He would, of course, receive the solid support of the Republicans and, if nominated, would be confirmed.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Feb. 17 — Wayne Hays, a Democratic congressman from Ohio, has been running around the world shooting off his mouth as qualified attorney for the United States to the effect that we repent our old "isolation" and repudiate our isolationists who, in turn, regard "isolationism" as patriotism. His credentials cannot be dignified with the stigma of fraud because he has none beyond his certificate of election from the 18th Ohio, with 321,000 people. Even that, of course, was not an overwhelming choice.

In his latest exploit, he advised a group of members of the Canadian Parliament in Ottawa that the flow of money from the United States to foreign countries would not be cut off if only because, among other reasons, "we have a selfish obligation to ourselves to keep the economy of the world from bogging down." In other lands, the local politicians and press do not readily realize that Hays' membership in the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House is meaningless because it is the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate which wields the real authority.

Hays has the hide of a rhinoceros as Congressmen Reece, of Tennessee, and Sieminski, of New Jersey, have demonstrated in public episodes. During the investigation of tax-free foundations, Hays waged a riotous filibuster in the course of which he impugned the honor of a Catholic nun, the daughter of the late Senator Pat McCarran, and charged Reece with cowardice. Sister Margaret Patricia's partisans berated Hays for insinuating that her degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Catholic University was tainted by fraud and Reece quietly published two divisional citations for unusual heroism in battle, with the 102d regiment of the 26th Division in the first war. He has the Purple Heart for wounds and three decorations for valor, the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Service Medal and French Croix de Guerre. He went into action at St. Mihiel as a platoon leader and came out in command of a battalion.

Hays joined up the day after Pearl Harbor as a reserve lieutenant of the Army but was back in mufti by August 1942. He claims that he was released for physical reasons. The details are confidential subject to his own permission to print.

Last March, during hearings on an immigration matter, Hays noisily attacked Lieut.-Gen. J. M. Swing, the Commissioner of Immigration. Hays yelled that he had adopted a baby girl and that Swing was plotting to injure the child for revenge on him. Swing had never heard of Hays, to say nothing of the baby. When Hays bawled that if Swing ever should hurt the baby, "when I got face to face with him, he would not be physically able to hold the job from then on," Swing asked, "Is he nuts?"

Swing still does not know what Hays was talking about. But Congressman Charles Sieminski, of Jersey City, realizing that a general holding an office in the bureaucracy could not hit back, put the chip on his own shoulder and invited Hays to do his stuff. "If you feel that way about it," Sieminski said, "let's go outside right now." Sieminski is a combat veteran of Korea and considerably smaller than Hays. His parents migrated from Poland and began taking in washing in the metropolitan area of Newark and Jersey City with a wash-basket. Father and children collected the bundles and returned them and all hands worked sometimes far into the night developing a laundry which is now enormous and believed to be one of the largest in the world.

About 18 months ago, Hays happened into Bonn on the Rhine, the capital of Western Germany, and called on the embassy to arrange a "press conference" for him. Here, as in Ottawa and on other occasions, the fact that he was a member of the insignificant Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, deceived the local dignitaries. Some resident American correspondents and a few Europeans showed up. The exploit was a turkey, however, for a barnstorming skeptic who had known Hays' record in Washington happened along a few hours later and spread the word that he was a nonentity. However, it is not feasible to cover him thus on all his travels so he does make an impression now and again in foreign centers which is not altogether eradicated by follow-stories from Washington.

Hays is a radical Democrat without prestige except as a grotesque character who cannot be embarrassed but the Republican palace guard used him to disrupt the investigation of tax-exempt foundations. The reason was that the Ford Foundation is the wealthiest and most pernicious in the political sense and Henry Ford, Jr., has been a power in the Eisenhower administration. The White House used this Democrat for this purpose when it was obvious that no Republican had Hays' unique qualifications.

Reece says Hays has the personality of a kid in a schoolyard who yearns to fight but can't find anybody he can lick.

Health for All

Turning Winter Into Spring

By the Calendar, February is the shortest month of the year. But to most of us—mothers, particularly—it often seems like the longest. By this time we've had enough winter to last us a lifetime—enough head colds, heating bills, and muddy boots—yet we still have weeks more of the same ahead of us.

What's the remedy? Well, we can spend the rest of the winter feeling miserable—or we can take positive action to speed up the arrival of Spring—inside ourselves if not outdoors.

Put Spring on the dinner table. No matter how meat-and potato-loving the family may be spring-type foods can tempt even the diehard away from his regular diet. You don't have to make a trip to Florida. You'll find strawberries, asparagus, early peas, baby carrots, and many other similar taste-tempters, frozen or in cans, at your local market. And they're not only delicious to eat but full of important vitamins and minerals as well.

Next, plants and flowers. Philodendron, ivy, Chinese evergreen are a surprising note of cheer to any room. Branches of spring flower trees and bushes can be brought into the house and forced into bloom.

Third, sports. By February, many of us are so tired of being cold that we either avoid going out or huddle in our coats as we race from one heated spot to another. But if we wear enough protective clothing, there are many out-door activities that can bring color to our faces, oxygen to our lungs, and zest to our outlook.

There are many other possibilities—you can probably think of several yourself: new slipcovers for the living room, a new dress for you (not black, though), a prespring bonnet that looks like Easter, a course in sewing, or typing, or swimming at the local "Y".

Whatever you decide upon, you'll not only feel better mentally, but because the mind plays a big role in health, you'll feel better physically, too. And if nothing works, remember that February still has only 28 days this year.

Your Income Tax Primer

(Tenth of 12 Chapters)
By RICHARD A. MULLENS
Written for NEA Service

If you plan to itemize your deductions for 1956, you will be interested in the table printed with this article which shows the average deductions, as percentages of adjusted gross income, claimed by taxpayers in 1952.

It is always wise to have records to back up your deductions. This is especially important if your deductions exceed the averages shown in the table.

But before you can decide whether to itemize deductions, you must determine what medical, child care, casualty, and other deductions you can add on to the deductions covered in the previous chapter of the Income Tax Primer.

To determine your deductible medical expenses, you should first separate all amounts spent in 1956 for medicine and drugs because such amounts are subject to a special rule. Then add up all amounts paid for medical or dental care, including all the items described on page 9 of the official instructions.

Amounts paid for medicines and drugs can only be included in the deduction to the extent they exceed 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income. This is so regardless of the age of you or your wife.

If, however, either you or your wife was 65 on or before Jan. 1, 1957, the remainder of your expenditures for medical and dental care for yourself or your wife can be deducted in full up to a maximum dollar limit. If neither you nor your wife was 65 on or before Jan. 1, 1957, then your medical and dental expenses must first be reduced by 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income and you can only deduct the remainder, subject to a maximum dollar limit.

The maximum dollar limit on the amount of medical expense deduction is now:

$5,000 on a joint return or return of a head of household, if two exemptions are claimed; $7,500 if three exemptions are claimed; and $10,000 if four or more exemptions are claimed.

On a separate return of a taxpayer not the head of a household, $2,500 if one exemption is claimed, and $5,000 if two or more exemptions are claimed.

In determining the limit on medical expenses, do not count the extra exemption for old age or blindness.

Keep in mind that you can include any medical, dental or drug expenditures you make on behalf of either a dependent or one you could have claimed as a dependent if he had had gross income in 1956 of less than $600. If you or your wife were 65 or over in 1956, amounts paid by you for medical or dental care of your dependents can only be included to the extent they exceed 3 per cent of your adjusted income.

The so-called child care deduction for working mothers has several restrictions. For one thing, even though you qualify for the deduction, you cannot claim it and the standard deduction too. Like other personal deductions, it can only be deducted if you itemize on page 2 of Form 1040.

The only people entitled to this deduction are women (including working wives) and men (provided they are widowers, legally separated, or divorced) who in order to be gainfully employed must pay for the care of one or more of the following described dependents:

A son, daughter, or stepchild who is under 12 years of age or to any dependent who is physically or mentally unable to care for himself.

A taxpayer is considered to be gainfully employed if he is working for someone else, is self-employed, or is looking for work.

For any one year, you cannot deduct more than $600 for such expenses regardless of how much more you actually spent. If you spent less than $600 for care of the dependent while you were "gainfully employed," then you can only deduct the amount spent.

The amount of the deduction is subject to two further limitations if you are a working wife. These two limitations do not apply, however, to a working wife whose husband is incapable of self-support because of a mental or physical disability. The limitations are:

1. The working wife must file a joint return with her husband, and

2. Her dependent's care deduction must be reduced by the amount by which the adjusted gross income on the joint return exceeds $4,500. For example, if she has spent $500 for dependent's care while she was "gainfully employed" and the adjusted gross income on the joint return was $4,650, her deduction would be reduced by $150 ($4,650 minus $4,500) to $350.

Do not include in the deduction any amounts paid for a child or other dependent's care to someone who is also your dependent for tax purposes. Thus, if a widower pays his 17-year-old daughter $60 a month to stay home and take care of his younger children, he is not entitled to a $600 child care expense deduction for those payments.

Property losses caused either by a casualty or theft can be shown on page 2 of Form 1040 even though the property is for your own personal use. Casualty losses include damage from fire, storm, flood, lightning, hurricane and other sudden, unexpected or unusual causes. Thus damages from a bursting boiler or frozen pipes would be a casualty loss.

You can deduct damages to your car caused by a collision unless the collision was due to your wilful negligence. Faulty driving is not classed as wilful negligence, but driving while intoxicated is so classified.

The amount of the loss or damage to be deducted should be computed in accordance with the official instructions on page 10.

If you have difficulty determining the fair market value of the property both before and just after the loss, as required by the instructions, remember that such things as repair bills, insurance adjuster's estimates, and police or fire department records are good evidence of the amount of your loss.

A loss from a casualty or from theft should be deducted in the year the loss occurred. If you are covered by insurance, the loss must be reduced by any recovery.

If your casualty loss in 1956 exceeds your 1956 income you can deduct the excess from your 1954 and 1955 incomes and get a refund. Do this by filing a claim on a form you can get from your District Director of Internal Revenue.

The last deduction schedule on page 2 is a catch-all for deductions not taken elsewhere. Typical examples of items that can be deducted in the "Miscellaneous" schedule are:

1. Expenses of earning your salary or wage. Any ordinary and necessary expenses in your line of work are deductible. This includes dues, initiation fees and assessments to labor unions and professional societies; entertainment of customers to promote specific deals and not just for general good will; uniforms, work clothes and costumes required in your work that do not replace your own ordinary clothing; safety equipment, tools and supplies necessary and customary in your work.

2. Alimony paid regularly, but not necessarily at fixed intervals, under court order. You cannot deduct any sums specifically designated for the support of your minor children.

3. Costs of management, maintenance and conservation of property held for investment. This includes cost of a safety deposit box for your securities.

4. Fees or expenses incurred in preparing your income tax return.

Scout Troop 19 Of VFW Conducts Court of Honor

A court of honor featured the observance of Boy Scout Week by Boy Scout Troop 19 sponsored by Joyce-Schirick Post, VFW Thursday night at the VFW Post Home.

A tenderfoot ceremony for five boys was conducted by Carl A. Wiegert Sr., scoutmaster. They were George Simmons, Ronald Gardner, Thomas Kelly, Robert Keane and William Wiegert. Badges were presented by the troop committee and the boys each pinned a miniature tenderfoot pin on his mother.

List Advancements

Two boys, Edward Coddington and Carl A. Wiegert Jr., were advanced to First Class during a special ceremony conducted by George Hoffman Sr., explorer advisor of the troop. First Class badges were awarded by Robert Scanlon, member of the committee. Miniature pins were presented to the mothers by the boys advanced. During the ceremony George Hoffman Jr. received a first aid merit badge and Jerry Kelder, a citizenship in the home merit badge from A. J. Herdman, assistant scoutmaster.

Two year service stars were awarded to young Hoffman, Alfred Friedel, James Wilson and Edward Coddington. Two year good attendance bars were given to the Hoffman and Friedel boys by Jerry Kelder Sr., troop advancement chairman.

Part of the program was a skit presentation offered by Terry Fischer, senior patrol leader and member of the Owl Patrol.

Robert Tremper, neighborhood commissioner briefly addressed the gathering. Slides on Camp Tri-Mount, Rip Van Winkle Council Scouting camp were shown.

Offer Indian Dance

An Indian dance was performed by members of the Order of the Arrow under the direction of Elmor Yallum, scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 5.

The opening ceremony was in charge of Jerry Kelder Jr., assistant scoutmaster. Introductions were made by Leslie Munson, commander of the VFW Post and institutional representative of the troop.

Terry Fischer, senior patrol leader was in charge of the closing ceremony. Refreshments were served by the troop committee.

China now has, it is estimated, about 625 million people.

Clean Kitchen Drawers

How long since you've cleaned out the kitchen drawers? If they've gotten into an irritating tangle, it's time you turned them out. They're probably cluttered with useless odds and ends.

Engineers Plan Biggest Project

American engineers are launching a road building program that would pave a multi-lane superhighway more than 1½ times around the earth.

Their goal: 41,000 miles of interstate freeways in the next 13 years. That's the scope of the project involved in the 33-billion-dollar road building program authorized by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956.

As the nation's approximately 400,000 engineers observe National Engineers' Week, February 17-23, a goodly share of them will be preparing to take an active part in the road building program—something that's easily the biggest construction project in history.

Try to describe the program and you run out of superlatives. There's nothing quite like it in terms of long-range construction planning. Take for example, the statistics which indicate the quantities of materials needed for the program.

An estimated 5,200,000 tons of steel will be used each year. By the third year, the road builders will need 112,000,000 barrels of cement. Something like 908,000 traffic signs per year will be set up, and about 5,000,000 gallons of paint will be needed. It is expected that approximately 442,000 workers will be employed directly on highway construction at the peak of the program.

The magnitude of the planning is apparent when it is realized that the phrase "road building" under the federally sponsored program really means "super expressway building." The individual states are authorized to choose and acquire the rights of way, draw up the plans and specifications, and then do the construction—with the U.S. putting up most of the cost.

The engineer's role in this massive enterprise can be seen at all levels. At the very top is Bertram D. Tallamy, the civil engineer appointed by President Eisenhower as federal highway administrator. In his hands will be the reigns of federal responsibility as the program gallops into the spending of billions in tax money.

Move on down through the various levels of the program and the engineer's importance continues to be visible. Each state highway department will have its engineers draw up highway plans. To qualify for federal aid, the plans must meet a number of minimum standard set forth by the American Association of State Highway Officials and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Think It Through

By E. F. HUTTON

Ever ask yourself—real seriouslike—why Europe has become a permanent panhandler for the American dole?

You might mull this over when making out your income tax.

Well, war and the loss of colonies. No one can play down these reasons. Still the war ended 12 years ago, and we've sent Europe 50 billion bucks to get her on her feet. Aspirin after aspirin, and crisis after crisis.

Mr. Hutton

THE FINANCIAL TIMES, of London, in substance, writes: "This is the most serious economic crisis Britain has had to face for many years. Loss has stripped away the tinsel with which we have garnished years of improvidence. We must not try to maintain luxury standards of Government on an inadequate income.

"Economic strength can only be obtained by investing a high proportion of the national wealth in new factories and equipment, and by giving rewards to people who create wealth."

Beginning 47 years ago, under Lloyd George, British "liberal" politicians have waged an unceasing war on wealth and the "people who create wealth."

The atom bomb in this war has been TAXES, TAXES, TAXES—on incomes, on estates, on profits, and now on wages and jobs. Add Government waste and extravagant social insurances, which make life easy for shirkers and hard on workers.

"The power to tax is the power to destroy." It destroys the will to work.

Neighbor, there is a warning sign here on America's highway.

Search for Mother

Avon, N. Y. Feb. 18 (AP)—Authorities today continued a two-day old search for the mother of a new-born girl found dead in a field Saturday in this Livingston county village. The body was found by two boys. State police said the infant was apparently abandoned and died of exposure. It had been dead no more than two days, police said.

$75,000 Gems Theft

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—Isaac Levitan, a jewelry dealer, reported to police last night that $75,000 worth of uncut diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires were stolen from his apartment at 69-10 Yellowstone Blvd., Forest Hills, Queens. Levitan said the gems, which were in a leather bag in a closet, were not insured.

The English Language

By FRANK TRIPP

All of the time the publishers are coming out with new editions of encyclopedias that are 90 per cent rearrangement of the content of the old. Feeling an obligation, here's my contribution.

Lest the lingo of the gay Nineties be lost to posterity in the evolution of the colloquial (as ragtime has evolved into rock 'n' roll), here is a glossary, of a sort, oft as puzzling and far-fetched as the language of the present day "cats," to which I ain't "hep" and don't "dig."

A Gallager was a baker's saucer-sized five-cent pie. Wind pudding was angel food cake, Mother Hubbard, a beltless, smock-like house dress, also a type of locomotive. Gossamer, a rain coat; corset cover, a sort of brassiere; peek-aboo, a daring openwork shirtwaist; slats, whaleboned corsets; leg-o'-mutton, big puffed sleeves; gums, rubber overshoes.

Frank Tripp

Spit curl, the first home permanent. Shams, fancy day covers for bed pillows; lambrequin, a shelf drapery; passementerie, beaded trimming; antimacassar, a chair tidy; fascinator, a small knitted shawl; Nubia, a fleecy head wrap.

MORE IN pop's realm, his mustaches were handle bars; his goatee was spinach; his sideburns were lilacs; his nose, a beezer; his flowing beard, a soup catcher. His big stomach was a corporation. His dress-up "boiled shirt front" was a tombstone. Often it had no body or sleeves, then was a dickey.

A sawbones was a doctor; a sky pilot, a preacher; a flatfoot, a cop. Suds was beer; a growler was a "bucket of suds." Whiskey was red eye. A pea jacket was a short ulster; an ulster, a heavy, high-collared overcoat; today's front buttoned sweater was a wammus (warm us); a turtle-neck was a double necked sweater.

A watch was a turnip; the Waterbury, an early cheap watch, also the Ingersoll. A hansom was a two-wheeled horse-drawn taxi; a scorcher, a reckless cyclist; a nickelodeon, a fire-trap five-cent movie, the "flickers."

A PIANO was a tin pan; an accordion, a wheeze box; a bass viol, a dog house; names that have endured; whence came "Tin Pan Alley." Lost are go-buggy for automobile; skiddoo and 23 as brushoffs and the old-time funnies.

Such as Slim Jim, Katzenjammer Kids, Happy Hooligan, Klondike Twins, Maud and Si, Barney Google, and The Yellow Kid, pioneer of them all. Gone is the oil burning magic lantern with slides of Niagara Falls and the Chicago World's Fair. Gone are "Ish Kabibble!," "You're not the only pebble on the beach," "Rubberneck," "Ah there, just my size." It's the wolf whistle now.

In the ads, Sunny Jim was exploiting Force, one of the first packaged breakfast foods. Jim Dumps was that way because he didn't eat Force — one of the earliest continuity ad campaigns.

Ivory soap had already learned to float. Everybody knew Lydia Pinkham's face and Dr. Munyon's warning finger, "There is hope!" A whale's side was being scrubbed white on every box of Soapine which was fighting it out with Pyle's Pearline and Gold Dust Twins, all wash tub detergents.

Then there was the thunder mug. You tell 'em about it, old-timer. My editor might object, further than letting me say that it sported a "Silencer," a fancy crocheted cover wrapper that let the lid slip on quietly those nights back when the indoor "plumbing" was made of crockery.

I can remember when my dad used to ask me when I would learn the English language.

Change to Missiles

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Plattsburgh Air Force Base will use guided missiles to protect itself from enemy air attack. Lieut. Col. Edward R. Kandel, public relations officer at the new Strategic Air Command bomber base, said a plan to use anti-aircraft guns had been discarded on the ground they were outmoded.

Trailer Parley

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP)—About 1,00 trailer dwellers from throughout the nation were on hand today for the opening of the Tin Can Tourists of the World's annual convention. This week will be devoted to dances, sports events and other entertainment. Business sessions will be held next week.

LOOK FOR PROSPERITY

Readers of this column frequently write me to ask when the stock market is going into a tail spin. The memories of these people go back to the depression 30's when the basic commodity price level was very low, unemployment was rampant, farmers were in distress and industry was prostrate.

Twenty-five years ago, total national income was about 40 billion dollars. The years 1931, 1932 and 1933 still haunt many investors. Some of them believe the country can drift back into the economic conditions of those days. Well, it can't. There are too many powers, and controls, available to prevent that happening.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, a most important governmental agency, makes loans on a great variety of agricultural products — especially wheat, corn and cotton — and purchases vast supplies of farm commodities. In 1932, when national income hit a low, wheat sold for 40 cents a bushel and cotton at 5 cents a pound. Economic paralysis on the farms brought stagnation to industry. Today, the Commodity Credit Corporation has billions of dollars invested in basic farm products. This is only one of Uncle Sam's controls.

Government Support

Just now, wheat futures (March, 1957) are $2.37 a bushel. March cotton is about 35 cents a pound. And so on down the line. Today, wheat is about 600 per cent higher in price than it was in 1932. And cotton is 700 per cent higher. Those are important figures for investors who went through the bear market 30's to remember. Agricultural prices are supported by the Government.

The Eisenhower budget for fiscal 1957-1958 calls for 72 billions of dollars. In addition to this, tax collections for Social Security will bring the total amount of Uncle Sam's income to 80 billions. Now that is an amount twice as big as was national income in 1932.

Blood does not come out of a stone. And 80 billions of tax money for the United States government will not come out of deflationary economy. Today national income should be around 400 billions a year if tax revenues are to be big enough to furnish Uncle Sam enough money to pay his bills.

What if the country should go into a depression? Well, high governmental budgets would still be with us. And if tax collections did not provide the money, Congress would have to do what was done for so many years — pass legal measures authorizing an increase in the federal debt. Then this debt would be turned into money.

Inflation Rules

Such money causes wages and prices to rise and the dollar loses some of its purchasing power. Such phenomena are called inflation. And inflation has ruled America's economic roost for over two decades.

If our country does not enjoy a sound prosperity, then an unsound prosperity will have to be promoted. It is very doubtful that in the years ahead the governmental budgets will be markedly lower than they are now. National income must remain high if tax collections are to be adequate.

The money Congress helps to create when income does not balance outgo unsettles the whole economy. But Uncle Sam pays his bills and his dollars are better when national income is high and taxes cover his expenses.

Those who are looking for stock market conditions of the 30's will not find them. I am not saying stocks won't sell off. They may. But such a collapse of prices as we had in 1931, 1932 and 1933 just won't happen.

(Q) "I am 32. My uncle has just left me $15,000. I have no securities or insurance. What should I do with this money?"

W. W. B.

(A) Put $1,000-$2,000 in a savings bank. With the rest, buy an assortment of bonds, preferred and common stocks selling to yield 5 per cent. Use $400-$500 of this annual income to buy an insurance contract.

Early Ruffs Gain Trick

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

In a Fort Worth duplicate the other night every North-South pair reached the easy spade game on identical bidding.

The defense was identical also. The four of hearts was opened. East won the queen and king of hearts and shifted to the three of diamonds. Every declarer won that trick and then difference in play appeared.

Several declarers laid down a high trump from their hand and shortly thereafter found out that there was no way left for them to make more than four.

Careful declarers made five by ruffing a heart, returning to their own hand with the second high diamond, ruffing the third diamond and then pulling trumps.

The reason that I say "careful declarers" is that this is one hand where there is no hurry to draw trumps. The play to ruff out both a heart and diamond loser will work as long as neither red suit breaks six-two or worse against you.

Such a break is possible but certainly not probable. It would be nice to be able to guard against it.

On the other hand those declarers who started the trump suit found that their play for the overtrick collapsed against the far more likely bad break of three trumps to the jack in the West hand and four clubs in the East hand.

Buys First Bonds

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP)—Israel Rogosin of New York bought a million dollars worth of bonds in the opening of a drive to sell 75 million dollars of Israel bonds, the campaign sponsors announced yesterday. Rogosin is a rayon and textile manufacturer. Former President Harry S. Truman and comedian Eddie Cantor headed a speaking program that launched the Israel bond organization's fund-raising effort. Nearly 15½ million dollars worth of bonds were sold during the three-day kick-off, sponsors said.

This week, Feb. 18-23, is National Haircutting Week all over America — which raises the question:

IS YOUR BARBER YOUR FRIEND?

There are two kinds of barbers. One is out to protect you—the public. This is the one we want you to know — to learn to know one from the other!

Who is this barber? He is the one who is a member of an organization which has pioneered in the program to prevent the spread of disease and infection in barber shops. He has helped to work and fight for sanitary laws for the protection of yourself and your children.

As a result, Barber Shops of today are regulated by law and have become a safe, sanitary place to secure efficient and healthful personal services. You should give preference to the Barber Shop which has your welfare at heart. You should know which barber has joined in the fight to rid Barber Shops of spreading disease and infection, and who has helped to secure legislation for your protection.

If your barber is your friend, he will be displaying the emblem of the largest organization of Barbers in America.

Look for and ask for the Union Shop card when patronizing a barber shop. Union Shops are Better Barber Shops.

The following Barber Shops of Kingston Local 534 are members of the organization, The Journeymen Barbers International Union of America. Support them and you will be assured of Craftsmanship, Courtesy and Cleanliness.

Program Check On Disabled Is Encouraging

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—The state health commissioner reported today that preliminary results of a pilot program to rehabilitate disabled welfare recipients showed that 73 per cent of those treated had improved.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe described the results as "encouraging."

His report was read to a meeting of the State Medical Society by Dr. Morton L. Levin, an assistant health commissioner.

The state is seeking to determine how many disabled persons on public assistance can be helped, even to the point of resuming work.

The project is a joint effort of the health, education and social welfare departments and is being carried out at the State Rehabilitation Hospital at West Haverstraw.

73 PC Improved

Of the first 100 patients discharged, Dr. Hilleboe said, 73 per cent were considered improved. Of these, he said 59 per cent showed moderate or marked improvement.

At the time of admission, 60 per cent were considered to have disabilities that would never permit them to work again. When discharged, Hilleboe reported, the total had dropped to 36 per cent.

Hilleboe said that in 1955 approximately 40,000 persons in the state were receiving public welfare aid for the disabled. He said about 20,000 new cases were being processed each year.

The pilot program was undertaken, Hilleboe said, to determine whether this total could be reduced through intensive rehabilitation and to obtain data on the costs, personnel and facilities needed to continue such a program.

Suspect Chemicals

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—The State Labor Department will try to determine whether chemically treated forms caused illness among employes of the town of Rotterdam tax office. Supervisor Benjamin N. Williams said Saturday four workers in that office had suffered from sore throat, nausea and nose and eye irritations. He said the tax office used more of the special paper—treated for making duplicates—than any other town office. The industrial hygiene unit of the Labor Department will make the investigation.

Paper Problems

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—Two relatively new problems — a squeeze on profits and a lull in demand—confronted more than 4,000 paper manufacturers gathered here today for the annual convention of the American Paper & Pulp Assn. (APPA). E. W. Tinker, executive secretary, said that one of the main themes of the convention will be "the need to increase sales, improve existing markets and open new markets to meet the expanding production of the industry."

Makes Child Happy

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Lisa Dougherty, 4, has realized a major ambition in a life that is to be a short one. She was visited Saturday by Jimmy Dodd, who appears on television as head of the Mickey Mouse Club. He interrupted a New England tour to make the visit in response to a plea from Lisa, via her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dougherty. Doctors say Lisa, suffering from a brain tumor, has about a year to live.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Received the following from one of my readers in Port Ewen. He writes: "In a recent issue of The Kingston Freeman, the report that the West Shore division was to discontinue its Ulster Park and Port Ewen stations . . . no doubt due to the automobile and bus travel on our modern highways. A few old timers may remember the first train that passed over this railroad and some New York city folks may recall going to the Catskill Mts. on this railroad. In the summer months, there was a so-called, Mountain Train, which would be switched on the Ulster and Delaware line giving a through service to Weehawken and the mountain resorts without changing cars. It is said, even the freight traffic has felt the pinch from motor freight trailers. However, from my window, I can see many diesel powered freight trains passing on the New York Central main line on the east shore of the Hudson river.

"Many of these trains having well over a 100 freight cars. Like the new Kingston - Rhinecliff bridge, progress during our time has changed many things right before our eyes. No doubt, in a few years the now discontinued ferry service will also be forgotten except by the old timers."

He further writes: "Returning to the subject of railroads, I find that the first steam locomotive was made in England in 1828. The first railroad built in America was in 1826. It ran from a granite quarry at Quincy, Mass., to the Neponsent river, a distance of about two miles. The cars were pulled by horses. The first American made steam locomotive was made in 1830 and was called 'The Tom Thumb.'

"It was made by a Mr. Peter Cooper and was used on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. It operated at an average speed of 14 miles an hour."

"In the year 1839, a Mr. Henry Burden of Troy, N. Y., patented and made the machine for making railroad spikes which are used to fasten the rails to the ties. The machine could make 50 spikes per minute. It was said to be the best paying invention of the time." He wonders how those first spikes compare with those of today, and with the production of one automatic machine of today."

In reading about some of the sleigh-loads in this column he wonders if anyone remembers a straw ride which was struck by the Wallkill train at the Binnewater crossing. He says, Frank Wood was killed, also both horses. There were about 40 persons in the load, several hurt badly. He thinks the crossing was near the Binnewater depot, near DeWitt Lake. He found this item in an old item torn from The Kingston Freeman but the date was torn off, except for the month of February. Perhaps some of the readers remember the year.

From time to time I am asked about the subway we had for the trolley cars. I wonder how many folks remember it. C. Gordon Reel designed and built the subway at the West Shore Station when he was superintendent of the Colonial City Traction Co. of Kingston. He was born in St. Louis.

He constructed the St. Louis, Kirkwood and Merrimac Highland R.R., one of the first interurban roads built in America. He was a graduate of civil and electrical engineering from Washington University in 1893. In his late years he lived on the Strand in Rondout in the old Fox Hall Manor House, according to Picturesque Ulster.

Outside, Inside

Miami, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP)—The break was an outside job, all right—perhaps by a man with inside experience. Police said someone scrambled over the city stockade fence, dropped to the ground inside and made off with $190 worth of equipment from a stockade machine shop yesterday.

MAINE MONUMENT

Memorial Services Held To 'Remember the Maine'

Memorial services commemorating the 59th anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine were held Sunday at 1 p. m. at the Maine monument, Malden-on-Hudson.

Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW, the Auxiliary and Dads of Foreign Service Veterans conducted the services.

On February 15, 1898 the battleship Maine with Capt. Charles D. Sigsbee in command was blown up in Havana harbor supposedly by an external mine with a loss of 264 men and two officers.

USWV Absent

In years past members of Lt. Charles Vroman Camp 129, United Spanish War Veterans with members in Saugerties and the Catskill area participated. This year death and sickness among the group dwindled the numbers and none of the organization were able to attend to witness the ceremonies.

Two of the Saugerties past commanders answered the final call this past year. Michael J. Tyrrell of Mt. Marion died July 4 and John A. Cawein of Malden, November 20. Mr. Cawein was individually responsible for the restoration and remodeling of the Maine Monument at Malden. Another past commander of Saugerties, William Keys of Katsbaan is reported ill at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Albany.

During the services Bernard E. McCutcheon, Mrs. Le Roy Lewis, Auxiliary president and Richard Gardner, chaplain officiated. Mrs. Lewis placed the traditional wreath at the base of the monument. Clifford Lewis of Father Harty Drum Corps of Saugerties sounded taps.

List Participants

Other VFW members participating were Miss Marie M. Mc Cutcheon, Mrs. John J. Prendergast, Mrs. John J. Wood Sr., Mrs. Eva Mae Peck, Mrs. Helen Arold, John Utter and Charles Arold.

Also witnessing the ceremonies were John J. Helfert, neighbor of the late Mr. Cawein and member of Lamouree-Hackett Post 72, American Legion; Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Cawein and Mrs. John A. Cawein, who placed a wreath at the base of the monument in memory of her husband.

Seven Guests Rescued In Albany Hotel Fire

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Fire broke out early today in a room on the third floor of the eight-story Hampton Hotel.

Seven guests, partially overcome by smoke, were assisted down stairs to the lobby when elevator service was disrupted. One was hospitalized.

Battalion Fire Chief Richard Fleming said the fire apparently started in a waste paper basket. The flames spread to a mattress and destroyed the room's contents, he said.

Donald Holbrook, 78, legislative correspondent and bureau chief for the Cuyler News Service, was taken to Albany Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. His condition was listed as fair.

The cause of the fire in the brick hotel, at State street and Broadway, was not determined. There was no estimate of the damage.

Call money, a familiar term in Wall Street, is a short-term loan; that is, "over-night money."

Think Sparks Caused Rubber Plant Fire

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Sparks which fell from a workman's torch and lay smouldering among rubber scraps have been tentatively blamed for a fire that heavily damaged a former rubber reclaiming plant Saturday.

But Fire Commissioner William M. Daly said he was still investigating the cause of the blaze in the city's east section.

Four firemen and the plant watchman suffered minor injuries in the fire, mostly through inhaling the thick, black smoke.

The two-story, steel and concrete building was being evacuated by the U. S. Rubber Reclaiming Co., to its plant in nearby Cheektowaga. Company President Chester H. Peterson said equipment remaining in the building was worth from $25,000 to $50,000.

No official damage estimates were available.

The building was sold recently to the Benderson Development Co., of Buffalo. Only the plant watchman, Felix Lehman, was at the property when the fire was discovered.

Conrad Hilton, owner of 29 hotels in many of the major cities of the world, was born in San Antonio, New Mexico.

$112,507 Awarded Ulster County Per Capita Aid

Ulster county received $112,507.63 as its share of $22,748,983.68 per capita assistance to cities, towns and villages of the state, according to State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

This payment is the fourth quarterly installment in the state's 1956-57 fiscal year.

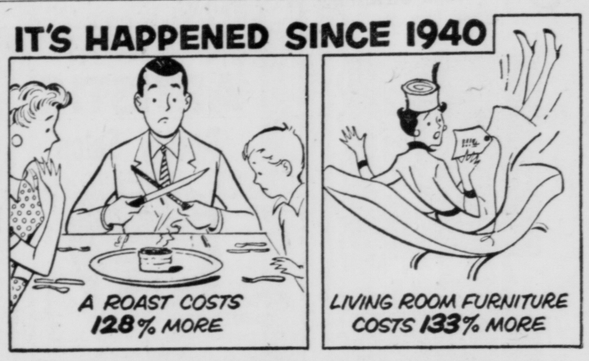

The checks were mailed to the fiscal officers of the state's 62 cities, 549 villages and 932 towns.

Unlike other types of state aid, which are granted for a specific purpose, such as, education, highways and health, the per capita aid can be used for any general municipal purpose.

This type of aid is allocated to local units of government on a per capita basis as determined by the 1950 Federal Census. Each city receives annually the sum of $6.75 times the amount of its population; towns $3.55 for each inhabitant and villages $3.00 for each inhabitant.

Neighboring counties benefited as follows: Dutchess $158,476.80; Greene $32,965.29; Orange $201,092.81 and Sullivan $43,899.23.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

A GIFT FOR A GIFT

A reader explains: "Four years ago close friends of ours asked my husband and me to be god parents for their child. We have remembered this child ever since at Christmas and birthdays with very nice presents. When our son was born we asked the wife of the couple to be his godmother. Our son was a year old recently and his godmother not even as much as sent him a card. I was very much put out over this in view of the fact that we have been very generous to their child. Under the circumstances, don't you think we would be entirely right to discontinue our present-giving to their child?"

I certainly do—unless they are in very straightened circumstances and you are very well off.

Plastic Covers on Furniture

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it rude, or in bad taste, to leave plastic coverings on furniture, such as living room sofa and chairs, when entertaining guests—especially when they are expected and there would be time to remove them? This may seem a rather farfetched point of etiquette, but it has caused much criticism and I would appreciate your opinion.

Answer: It is not rude to leave them on, but it shows indifference to the beauty of your home. I would say that keeping the plastic covers on the furniture is very much the same as keeping on a house apron when expecting guests.

Serving Brick Ice Cream

Dear Mrs. Post: When serving brick ice cream that is individually wrapped in paper wrappers, is it proper to leave the wrapper on when serving it to the guests, or should it be removed before serving? At a recent dinner party to which I had gone the hostess left the paper wrappers on and I wondered if this was correct?

Answer: Wrappers should be removed before serving ice cream.

How should table napkins be folded? What size is used for dinner? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but leaflet E-32, "Table Linen," answers these questions. # Paris Hats Are Pretty for Spring

BY ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

Paris, (NEA)—For an interesting change, designers are actually producing hats that men should like this spring.

That is, the new hats are romantic, feminine and pretty.

The "pudding bowl" has vanished. In its place is the small flowered cap, the tiny toque and the 1957 version of the cloche. There are even some charming little bonnets.

Flowers are important to these delightful little hats daisies, cowslips, narcissi, violets, camellias, roses and forget-me-nots.

There is an all-flower hat in every collection. It may be a cloche cevered with blue hyacinths or a toque enhanting with apple blossoms. But it's there.

Many of the new Parisian hats play up the profile prettily. And there are turbans, this season fashioned from fragile mousseline or veiling. These sheer little hats, sculptured into shape, appear in nearly every collection.

Color emphasis is on every shade of green, followed by sharp turquoise and pinks, clear reds, violets and yellows.

The hats that are blossoming in Paris this spring are pretty, as hats should be. These, from the collection of designer Claude St. Cyr, are small and flattering. The cap (left) is pearl-colored tulle covered with spring flowers and leaves. A little toque (center) in light straw gets elegant trim of black organza foliage. And a sophisticated small hat (right) has twisted embroidery trimming on stiffened sheer material.

P-TA to Feature Film At February Meeting

At the meeting of the Onteora Central School Parent-Teacher Association scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p. m., a film entitled "A Family Affair" will be shown.

The film is a dramatization of family life and deals specifically with a defiant adolescent son. It illustrates how, through friendly discussion with each other and by enlisting the aid of recognized social agencies, the parents are able to cope with the situation.

A question and answer period will be held at the conclusion of the film.

Another feature of the meeting will be the awarding of the Jenkins Memorial life membership card. This award, sponsored by the P-TA will be given to the person contributing the most toward the welfare of youth in the community. A donation of $25 also presented by the P-TA on behalf of the person receiving the life membership. Half of this amount will be used for the Jenkins scholarship fund and the other half will be added to the student loan fund established in order to aid students desiring to attend state colleges or universities.

Toscanini Tribute

Milan, Italy, Feb. 18 (AP) — The music lovers of Milan, from street sweepers to opera stars and directors, stood in drizzling, chilling rain today to pay their last homage to maestro Arturo Toscanini. The massive casket containing the noted conductor's body arrived by train from Rome. Draped with an Italian flag, it was placed in the center foyer of the famous La Scala opera house, where the great conductor scored some of his most resounding triumphs. The lion of music died in New York Jan. 16 at the age of 89. His body was flown from the United States yesterday. Toscanini's son, Walter, and his daughters, Countess Wally Castelbarco and Mrs. Wanda Horowitz, accompanied the body.

Refuse to Move Dies

Detroit, Feb. 18 (AP) — Local 212 of the United Mine Workers said in a statement today that its members will refuse to move or ship any dies or fixtures from Chrysler's Detroit stamping division plants until an agreement is reached with the company on job transfer rights. Pat Caruso, president of the local, said Chrysler Corp. "is removing dies piece-meal from the stamping division plants at Mack Ave., Eight-mile Road and Outer Drive." Caruso said the equipment was to be sent to a new Chrysler plant in Twinsburg, Ohio. "The movement of these jobs," Caruso said, "decreases job opportunities for members of Local 212. Thousands of Chrysler workers have built their homes and based their futures in the greater Detroit area, and all have ties in this community. These workers have a right to know what their economics status will be."

3 Are Burned to Death In Brooklyn Apartment

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—Three persons were burned to death today in a fire in a Brooklyn apartment building.

The dead were identified by firemen as William Scofield and his wife, both 50, and Michael Leartino, 70.

They died in a top-floor apartment in a three-story brick building.

Three occupants of a second-floor apartment, where the fire reportedly started, suffered burns but escaped from the blazing building. Firemen said a kerosene stove explosion caused the blaze.

The building at 686 5th avenue, which had two stores on the ground floor, was ruined, firemen said.

The fire was discovered about 2:30 a. m., and two alarms were sounded. It was reported under control in about 40 minutes.

Area Troopers Are Called Into Hunt For Babe's Mother

Area troopers were alerted during the weekend by a general alarm for the unidentified mother of a newborn baby girl found dead near a highway in the western part of the state.

All hospitals and doctors were alerted that the mother might seek medical attention and were urged to report any suspicious cases to state or local police immediately.

The infant's body was found Saturday afternoon near the intersection of Routes 5 and 20 at Avon, where police theorize it may have been left between 1 and 3 p. m. that day.

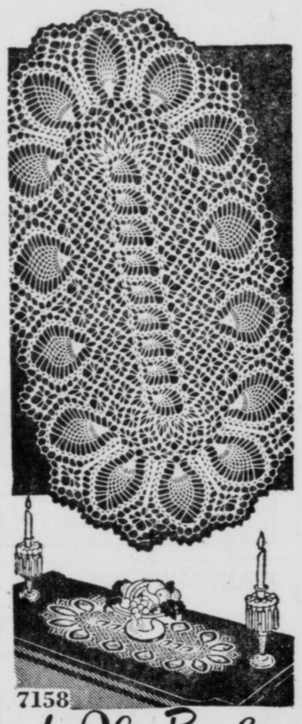

Cause of death had not been determined today. Police said the child weighed six and a half pounds and was normal in all respects and had lived for a short time after birth. When found, it had been dead from 24 to 48 hours.

Police said the baby had apparently been born elsewhere and without medical attention.

Are You Afraid to Take Direct Action Toward Child?

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

At four, Andy balks at coming to meals, delaying his mother's work.

So at mealtimes she tries to bribe him to be "nice" to her by being "nice" to him. She'll pretend great interest in the building of blocks he's erecting, saying, "My, what a big house you're making! Is it going to have a garage? Come along to lunch and tell me about it . . ."

But Andy always senses his mother's fear of him behind these words of simulated interest. It upsets him. He doesn't like being the dependent of a protector who suffers from fear of him.

So he says angrily, "Go away, you old dopey brat." But this open appeal for unfrightened action from his mother gets him nowhere. Instead of picking him up and bearing him out to the kitchen, she just experiences more resentment at him for increasing her helplessness.

She goes on talking. She says, "Is that the way to speak to your Mommy? Don't you know I love you and want you to be a good boy? Come to lunch now . . ."

In a recent issue of the Ladies Home Journal, Dr. Erich Fromm names the problem of Andy's mother. He says, "People who talk and talk and talk very often do not realize that there are certain acts to which one must commit oneself if one is really going to learn anything. The person who wants to swim, for instance, can talk with a swimming teacher all he wants to—but he can never learn to swim until he commits himself to trust the carrying power of the water."

Many parents fear taking direct action toward children.

Psychological knowledge can't help us with this fear. We can read child psychology books until our brains are jammed with information on how to act toward Andy—and still remain incapable of committing ourselves to the carrying power of action toward him.

This is the weakness of parent education. Though the experts can tell us what to do, they cannot swing us over the chasm that lies between doing and fear of doing.

They can't endow Andy's mother with the self-trust she needs to leap into the unknown consequence of acting toward him, feeling, "This thing I do seems so right to me that I can't be bothered fussing about its consequences."

Often, parents who fear action toward children were victims of childhood overprotection. They dare not give themselves to any risky action because they were denied discovering how often it blesses us.

Egyptian Ship Makes First Trip in Canal

Suez, Egypt, Feb. 18 (AP)—Squeezing past obstructions, the little Egyptian ship Ramses has traveled the entire length of the Suez Canal—the first commercial vessel to complete the 103-mile trip since last November's fighting.

The voyage of the 322-ton Ramses, little bigger than a tug, did not mean the waterway is cleared for ordinary shipping. There are still three major obstructions blocking the channel the UN salvage fleet hopes to open by March 10 for medium-sized vessels.

Some circles in Cairo believe that Egyptian President Nasser may slow or halt the clearance work to pressure the west into forcing Israeli withdrawal from Gaza and Aqaba.

The Ramses carried a cargo of medicines from Port Said to Suez, at the southern end of the canal.

Bondar, Haber, Spark Oneonta State Over New Paltz 74-70

Ex-KHS Cagers Contribute 31 Points to Victory

Bill Haber and Bob Bondar, former Kingston High cagers, sparked Oneonta State Teachers to a closely fought, 74-70, victory over New Paltz Teachers Saturday at the Paltz gym.

Haber canned 18 and Bondar 13 as the visitors spurted in the final six minutes to overtake the Hawks. A full-court press upset New Paltz and fired the comeback.

Comfortable Lead

The Hawks led comfortably, 64-52, when Oneonta caught fire. The invaders reeled off 12 straight points to knot the count at 64-all with 2½ minutes left and then went on from there to win.

Sol Goldin, New Paltz's high-scoring forward, led both sides in point-making with 25. Milo Dalbey hit for 15 and Jack Hussnatter 10.

The loss evened the Hawks record at 6-6. They play three road games starting Friday at Plattsburgh before returning home for their finale against the Alumni, March 2.

Hand Blisters May Do What Rosewall Can't

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—An ugly hand blister may achieve what the world's best tennis players have been unable to do — knock Pancho Gonzales off his professional throne.

The 28-year-old pro champion from Los Angeles disclosed today the recurrence of a hand injury which first struck him in Australia last fall, and he said ominously:

"If this thing gets any worse, I'll have to quit the tour."

The tall, swarthy Californian of Mexican extraction bared his inflamed paw after crushing Ken Rosewall in the Australian's American pro debut before 11,416 at Madison Square Garden yesterday, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

The victory took only 60 minutes and sent the pro tourists on to Dallas where the 100-match series will be resumed tonight, with Gonzales leading 8-4.

Promoter Jack Kramer, whose present tour stands to gross more than a quarter of a million dollars, was disturbed over the development but said he expected the big star of his tour to continue.

"Pancho has a signed contract with me to play 100 matches," Kramer said. "If he doesn't fulfill that contract he stands to lose his professional title and with it all the guarantees of future tours."

Celts Only Sure Bet For Playoffs

(By The Associated Press)

The eight-team scramble for six National Basketball Assn. playoff slots today careened into its final month—with only the Boston Celtics virtually assured a post-season berth. And the Celts, Eastern Division leaders, have been slipping lately.

The Celtics, winners of 37 NBA games, are the lone team assured of a better than .500 season. Each NBA club plays 72 games during the season which ends March 13. Philadelphia, next best winner, has 32 victories to place second in the East.

Nats Tighten Race

The Syracuse Nationals tightened the race for the final playoff position in the Eastern Division Sunday beating Boston 116-106 with a fourth-period rush.

The Nats moved into a virtual third-place tie with the New York Knickerbockers, who lost both their coach and a 123-115 game to Philadlephia. The Knicks held third alone Saturday after whipping Minneapolis 120-112 in a televised game.

In the Western Division Sunday, Fort Wayne whipped Rochester 104-85 to take a two and a half game division lead. The Pistons nicked the Royals 87-84 Saturday.

St. Louis pulled a game and a half ahead of Rochester, going into a popcorn-pelted overtime to down Minneapolis 118-115.

Schayes Scores 48

Dolph Schayes, playing the entire 48 minutes for Syracuse scored 28 points made seven assists and grabbed 18 rebounds as keystone of the Nat's victory. New York leads Syracuse by .0003 percentage points. The Celtics dropped their fifth in seven games.

Knick coach Vince Boryla wasn't around to watch a second half Knick rally fall short in Philadelphia. He disputed a technical foul called when he protested a decision. Referee Jim Duffy banished him at four minutes, 12 seconds of the first quarter.

Paul Arizin and Joe Graboski each scored 25 points for the Warriors. Jim Baechtold scored 15 of his 20 points during the last half Knick rally which carried them within two points of the Warriors at 110-108. They had been trailing 65-43 at the half.

Will Introduce Bills To Save Watersheds

Albany, Feb. 18 (AP)—Two Republican legislators plan to introduce today legislation they say will "preserve the state's natural resources in scores of small watersheds."

The bills call for establishment of small watershed protection districts authorized to participate in a federal flood-prevention program.

Sponsors of the bill are Sen. Wheeler S. Milmoe of Canastota, chairman of the joint legislative committee on natural resources, and Assemblyman Jerry W. Black of Trumansburg, chairman of the state Flood Control Commission.

State aid would be limited, under the legislation, to $20,000 for a single project. The state would pay a maximum 50 per cent of the cost of land.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

BY JIMMY BRESLIN

NEA Staff Correspondent

Birdie Tebbetts is found these days at Chicago or Milwaukee or Manchester, N. H., or New York or wherever somebody is throwing a banquet. And Birdie talks, talks, talks.

Not once, however, has Birdie found himself in baseball's great mid-winter pastime of saying things you have to deny later. Jackie Robinson, for example, is a master at this. And Bill Bruton got up in a church basement some place and told everybody that "If Cincinnati gets some pitching, they'll make a runaway of the National League race."

The fact that Bruton plays the outfield for Milwaukee, a team which is supposed to be in the running, too, made matters uncomfortable for a time. Until Bruton admitted he never said it at all.

* * * * *

BIRDIE, WHO DID A FINE managing job on the once-moribund Cincinnati club, specializes in having a lot of cracks ("I tell my team before an important series to go out and get all the runs they can today—my mother may have this team in the pool") ready for the audiences.

And he probably works harder than normal after-dinner speakers at getting a string of snappy sayings together. He gets paid more. Since being named "Manager of the Year" Tebbetts gets $500 a night.

This doesn't mean that Birdie wouldn't like to blow the roof off some place. His most prized possesion is a tape recorder set up in his Nashua, N. H., home. On nights he isn't at a dinner, Birdie sits home and talks to the machine.

He puts down his impressions of teams, managers and players he has known. Now Birdie spent four years as a teammate of Ted Williams at Boston. His comments on Williams are etched onto the tape.

A magazine offered—and was turned down—$5,000 for the right to print the Williams recording.

Birdie is sort of a parallel to a sneak drinker. He is perfectly proper in public. But let the guy alone in his living room and he goes on a word bender.

JACKIE FARRELL OF THE YANKEES is a little guy who spends the baseball season hustling around the publicity department. But come this time of year, he emerges as a walking book on old jokes, eloquent introductions and long pauses while you laugh.

For seven years, Jackie has done the bulk of after-dinner talking for the Yankees. He has used Yogi Berra to death. He has given so much Casey Stengel double-talk that he is starting to sound incoherent himself.

But Jackie was bailed out the other night.

"I have been invited," he announced, "to address the Small Money Lenders' Association."

Jackie was prompt. "First time I've met these people on time," he announced.

Big Ed Walsh Sick and Broke

Cheshire, Conn., Feb. 18 (AP)—Big Ed Walsh, the Pennsylvania coal miner who became one of baseball's great pitchers 50 years ago, lies seriously ill today in a small bedroom here.

Although reluctant to talk about it, Edward Armstrong (Big Ed) Walsh, elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1946, is broke. His only revenue, he says, is a pension of $50 a month from the Veteran Baseball Players Assn.

He can't afford to buy postage stamps to answer requests for his autographs, most of them from kids, he admitted recently to a group of Connecticut sports writers.

That pains him as much as the crippling arthritis. Walsh, 74, once the idol of millions of baseball fans, can't walk. It's a struggle for him to sit up.

But it isn't his physical condition that he's complaining about. What has made him bitter is the failure of today's "high-salaried baseball players to do something about including the old-timers in their pension plans."

"After all, we helped to make baseball the popular game it is and paved the way for today's rich pension plans," says Big Ed.

The sight of Walsh struggling to sit up isn't a pretty one, but despite it, Big Ed says he is grateful for the $50 a month pension and favors from Mr. and Mrs. Henry MacAteer, a couple who have taken him into their modest one-family home here, only a pop-fly from Meriden's city line.

Ex-Convict Is Held For Tavern Murder

Buffalo, Feb. 18 (AP) — A 40-year-old ex-convict is being held today for grand jury action on a charge of first degree murder which followed the fatal stabbing of a man in a tavern brawl Saturday.

Leo Ratjaczak is charged with killing George Zasada, 41, of Buffalo, with the jagged edge of a broken beer glass.

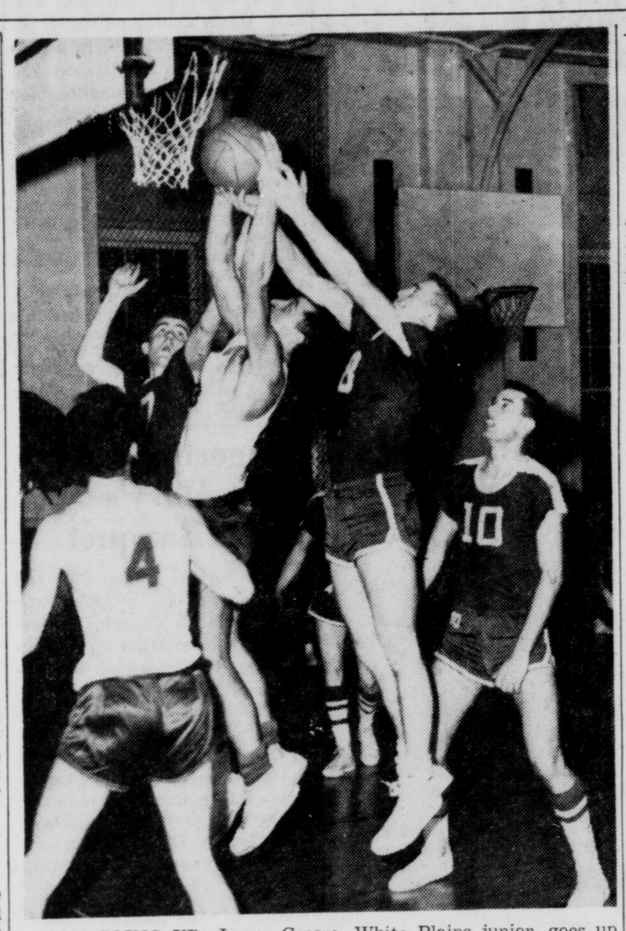

Police said Ratjaczak entered the tavern with a woman companion, Miss Phila Crossley, 40, shortly before the slaying.

They said Zasada spoke to Miss Crossley who then slapped him. Ratjaczak stepped in and plunged the broken glass into Zasada's neck, the authorities reported.

Police said Ratjaczak had a police record dating from 1933 and once served a five-year term in Attica State Prison on an assault conviction.

Ratjaczak entered a mandatory plea of innocent at his arraignment in City Court yesterday.

Authorities held Miss Crosley as a material witness.

MAN GOING UP: James Cecere, White Plains junior, goes up for a layup for New Paltz State Saturday against Oneonta. Teammate (4) Sol Goldin of Ellenville assists. Don Jester (8) and Bob Bondar (10) Oneonta are also in the action. (Freeman photo)

Dairymen Capture Five But Have Lead Shaved

Oster Socks 696; Ferraro Hits 690

Jones Dairy's Hudson Valley league keglers demonstrated convincingly over the weekend the shift to the Bowlerama will not seriously diminish their high-score proclivities.

They rocked a 3150 series in shutting out Hotel Newburgh, 3-0, in a clutch match Saturday night and 3063 in a 2-1 victory over Liberty, Sunday.

But the league bauble is still much up for grabs as Tony's Pizzeria survived a second game scare to blank Ellenville Economy. That left Sparks Greco's trundlers only two games behind the Dairymen.

Mardi-Bobs of Poughkeepsie retained a slim chance for first place with a 3-0 win over GI Joe's Express. Forsts Formost won two at Ellenville Shanahans.

Shoot Perfect 3100

The Dairymen flattened Hotel Newburgh with a perfect "3100" series, as all five bowlers went over the "600" mark and Johnny Ferraro was the bellwether with 690 on games of 236, 224 and 230.

Jerry Oster posted 206-205-605, Chris Gallo 216-215-201-632, Jim Amendola 202-210-601, Jack Ferraro 215-225-622. Gordon Mead spilled 224-213-612 for Newburgh.

Oster cracked 696 (235-233-228) against Liberty in a postponed match in which a 1047-1033 middle game setback hurt the Dairymen. Chris Gallo posted 211-220-619 and Jim Amendola 211-220-614.

Liberty Pair Hot

Avery cracked 664 (205-238-221) and Nelson had 266-651 for Liberty and it was this pair that ruined Joneses in the middle set.

With Phil Versace protecting his individual average lead with a 648 cluster, Tony's breezed in the first and third sets with Ellenville Economy and grabbed a crucial win, 1016-1010 in the middle.

Versace fired games of 211-244-193. Harold Broskie furnished 642, with 228-234-180.

Larry Petersen anchored Forsts with 238-603 in the match at Ellenville.

Woodstock Raps Boulevard, Field Artillery in Twin Bill

Last period flurries locked up decisions for the Woodstock Varsity Friday night as it swept Boulevard Gulf, 71-64, and the Newburgh Field Artillery, 99-71.

Boulevard led the Varsity through every period until the home side forged in front to stay 57-56 midway through the final period. Woodstock poured through 26 points in the winning surge to 15 for Gulf.

Big Bill Kleine and Rich Hilton tied for scoring honors each with 19. Pete Koehn hit 12 and Alan Van Wagenen 11.

BU Opposes Clarkson, Larries This Week

(By The Associated Press)

Boston University's hockey team invades New York state this week and probably wonders whether it will get the same treatment accorded Boston College.

BC met two upstate foes last week. It was shut out by Clarkson 5-0 Friday night and swamped 9-1 Saturday night by St. Lawrence.

BU meets the same two teams this week—St. Lawrence on Friday and Clarkson on Saturday.

Yugoslav Booter Win

Belgrade, Feb. 17 (AP)—The Yugoslav champion team of Red Star today defeated Bulgaria's champion squad of CDNA, 3-1, in the quarter-finals of the European soccer cup competittion.

Crucial Tilts Highlight DUSO Play This Week

"Crucial" best describes play this week in the torrid DUSO League basketball race which is tighter than the perennial drum.

Three games involving the top clubs—Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Port Jervis—share top billing. Interest locally centers around Kingston High's drive for a berth in the Intersectionals. The Maroons play one game this week, Tuesday at Monticello. They are idle Friday.

The big games are Poughkeepsie at Middletown and Port Jervis at Newburgh on Tuesday and Friday's Poughkeepsie at Port encounter. When the firing ceases Friday night, one and posibly two of the contenders will be all but out of the title race.

Race in Nutshell

Quickly, in a nutshell, here is the way the race stands today with two weeks remaining on the regular season: Poughkeepsie is first at 10-2 and Port and Newburgh are tied for second at 9-3.

The race was thrown into a frenzy by two upsets last Friday. Kingston shocked NFA, 61-59 and Middletown surprised Port, 63-52, while Poughkeepsie was slipping by Liberty in overtime, 66-64. By winning, the Pioneers climbed over their two rivals into the top spot.

Kingston's win was heartening to local fans since it kept the Maroon's chances of reaching the Intersectionals alive. Right now, KHS stands 6-7 and trails the Middies, who are the club the locals must beat out, by a half game. Middletown is even at 6-6 and has one more game to play.

Team Effort

Kingston achieved its win with a tremendous team effort. Bob Smith and Tony Grimaldi supplied the spark, with the latter playing his best game of the season, offensively and defensively. Tony threw in 17 points, four less than Smith and was second high to Larry Johnson in rebounds with 10.

Also instrumental in the victory were Johnson who tabbed 8. Bob Strong, who made 9, and George Uhl, who hit 6. Coach Jack Gilligan called the success a tremendous team triumph and hailed his lads for playing their top game of the season.

The rest of the DUSO slate reads like this. Fallsburgh at Liberty (Tuesday) and on Friday, Monticello at Newburgh, Middletown at Fallsburgh and Ellenville at Liberty.

Basilio Rules 3-1 Favorite To Hold Title Against Saxton

By The Associated Press

Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio and ex-titleholder Johnny Saxton have it out for the third and probably last time in Cleveland Friday night with the champ a 3-1 favorite to win the "rubber" bout.

Basilio, 29, regained his crown from the fast moving Saxton on a decisive ninth round technical knockout at Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 12. The ex-marine from Chittenango, N. Y., gave Saxton a real shellacking when Johnny tried to slug it out with his harder hitting rival.

Saxton, 26, a New Yorker, had won the title from Basilio in their first fight at Chicago March 14 on a disputed 15-round decision.

28 Knockouts

Basilio has scored 28 knockouts in 68 fights. His won-lost-draw record is 49-12-7. Saxton has a 53-5-2 record, including 21 knockouts.

The bout will be broadcast and telecast (NBC 10 p. m., EST) coast to coast. The Cleveland area will be blacked out of the telecast.

Fullmer 'Out' Choice

Middleweight Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, is an "out"—no betting—choice to stow away Ernie Durando, the one-time clouter from Bayonne, N. J., in a 10-round non-title scrap at Denver tonight (Monday).

Former lightweight champion Paddy DeMarco of Brooklyn pits his skill and experience against the power punching of Stefaan Redl, a Hungarian now living in Passaic, N. J., in the television 10-rounder (Dumont, 10:30 p. m., EST) at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight. Redl, 23, has an 11-0 record, including nine knockouts. DeMarco has a 73-17-5 record with only seven kayos.

TV Match

The Wednesday night radio-television (ABC 10 p. m., EST) 10-rounder matches speedy, Willie Pastrano of New Orleans, and husky Johnny Holman of Chicago, in a 10-round battle of heavyweight contenders at Louisville, Ky.

Walter Cartier, handsome, former middleweight contender from New York who gave up boxing for television acting, starts a fistic comeback at Holyoke, Mass., tonight. Cartier takes on Eddie Andrews of Lowell, Mass., in a 10-rounder.

Rory Calhoun, the middleweight contender from White Plains, N. Y., features a fight card in his home town Tuesday night. He meets LeRoy Oliphant of New York in a 10-rounder.

Canisius Griffs Doing Fold Job

(By The Associated Press)

What has happened to the Canisius College basketball team?

By the end of January, the Golden Griffins had won 14 games and lost only two. This month ,the team seems to have fallen apart.

Canisius squeaked by Notre Dame in a double overtime at the beginning of February. It lost to Marquette, defeated Manhattan an then suffered two straight losses—the latest Saturday night to neighboring St. Bonaventure 57-48. The other was to Seton Hall.

The Buffalo courtsters, certain to lose their 14th place position in the Associated Press poll, could go down to defeat again Wednesday.

Canisius meets Syracuse—another weekend upset victim—in one game of a doubleheader Wednesday night in the Syracuse War Memorial auditorium. Colgate nipped the Orange 84-83 Saturday night in the second of two extra periods.

Syracuse, now 13-4 for the season, might be able to get by Canisius if Vinnie Cohen and his mates can shake off the Colgate setback. Cohen, Syracuse's sparkplug and top scorer, netted 33 points in his team's losing cause.

BYU, SMU, Idaho State Near Crowns

(The Associated Press)

They may not have the "mostest", but Brigham Young, Idaho State and Southern Methodist figure to be the "fustest" to nail berths in the NCAA University division basketball tournament.

All three can haul up conference pennants this week—while the rest of the major college hopefuls start a string of title showdowns and play another round of the "who, me?" fight for the individual scoring crown.

BYU can become the first entry in next month's championship eliminations by defeating Utah Thursday and clinching the Skyline Title.

Only Need Split

Idaho State can pick up its fifth consecutive Rocky Mountain championship with nothing more than a split against runner-up Western State in a Friday-Saturday pair.

The SMU's Mustangs, who had to wait 17 years between Southwest Conference titles, can make it three in a row by disposing of last place Texas A & M tomorrow night and then ousting runner-up Rice Saturday.

The individual scoring battle probably will go down to the wire, too, although 5-9 Chet (The Jet) Forte of Columbia is going to have to hustle to keep up with South Carolina's Grady Wallace and Kansas' Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain.

Wallace Leads Scorers

At the moment, Wallace has the lead with a 30.6 average. Then comes Chamberlain at 30.1 and Forte with 29.6.

Wallace, only one of the three with a consistent scoring punch, and Chamberlain each have three games this week. Forte plays twice.

Wallace is at home against Furman tomorrow night, shoots at North Carolina Friday and at Duke Saturday. Chamberlain plays at home against Oklahoma tonight, Nebraska Saturday and travels to Oklahoma A & M Thursday. Forte is at Yale Wednesday and Brown Saturday.

Here's how the other conference races shape up:

ATLANTIC COAST—Unbeaten North Carolina gets another chance to make up time against once-powerful North Carolina State tonight, then plays South Carolina Friday. Tar Heels have first place sewed up, will be top choice in conference title tourney starting March 7 at NC State.

SOUTHERN — West Virginia (10-0) could cinch first place and No. 1 seeding in title tournament should runner-up Washington & Lee (7-2) lose to either Virginia Tech (8-4) tomorrow or Wililam & Mary (6-8) Friday. Mountaineers are idle, can clinch first for sure by winning one or two games next week.

SOUTHEASTERN — Air may clear a bit tonight when leader Kentucky (8-2) hosts runner-up Vanderbilt (8-3). Auburn (7-3) still in on title chase. Mississippi State and Tulane faded contenders with 6-4 records.

BIG TEN—Indiana (7-2) leads with five victories in row, plays also-ran Iowa tonight. Ohio State idle tonight, and Michigan State, seeking seventh consecutive victory at Illinois tonight, make it a three-way fight. OSU is 7-3, MSU 6-3. Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, all 5-4, not out yet, but groggy.

MISSOURI VALLEY—Bradley (7-1) leads, plays at home against third-place Wichita (7-2) tonight, goes to St. Louis against runner-up Billikens (8-2) Saturday. Bills, beaten at Bradley last week, whipped Wichita at St. Louis last Saturday.

BIG SEVEN — Kansas (6-1) and Kansas State (5-2) are the big guys, with Iowa State (5-4) a possible thorn in K-State's side. Kansas plays at home to last place Oklahoma tonight, Nebraska Saturday. K-State at Nebraska tonight, at home in first of two with Iowa State Saturday. K-State, Kansas meet March 6 at K-State.

PACIFIC COAST — California (10-0), UCLA (9-1) and Washington (10-2) all alone. Showdown this weekend sends Cal to Washington. UCLA is at Oregon.

IVY—Yale (7-1) gets big test against third place Columbia and Princeton (both 5-3) Wednesday and Saturday. Runnerup Dartmouth (6-2) at home to Penn Friday, winless Cornell Saturday.

Immanuel Five Defeats Trinity

Immanuel Lutheran led all the way to defeat Trinity Lutheran, 46-41, in a Protestant Junior church league contest.

Carl Beatty swished 18 points and Ed Calvin hit 16 for the Immanuels, who led 24-19 at the half. Rich Terpening's 21 points for Trinity took game honors. Ken Zerbst added 12.

Hall now is attached to the Boston Army base.

Moylan Wins Buffalo Net

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N. J., is the newly-crowned winner of the Buffalo Tennis and Squash Club's 22nd annual mid-winter invitational tournament.

Moylan, the nation's fourth-ranked player, defeated Barry Mac Kay of Dayton, Ohio, 6-4, 6-4, yesterday in the finals of the two-day event.

On the way to the finals, Moylan eliminated defending champion Ulf Achmidt, Swedish Davis Cup star, 16-18, 6-0, 6-3.

Saturday, Moylan beat Cliff Mayne of Fort Monmouth, N. J., 6-2, 9-11, 6-4, to gain the semi-finals.

Mac Kay reached the finals at the expense of Dick Savitt of New York Saturday and of Vic Seixas of Philadelphia yesterday—both veterans of international play. Both Savitt and Seixas went down 6-3, 6-4.

Biggest Victory

Mac Kay's victory over Savitt marked, by his own admission "my biggest victory," and makes him a serious threat for the National Indoor championship which begins Wednesday in New York.

Savitt, the 1951 Wimbledon champion, and winner of the 1952 indoor title is top-seeded for the tournament. The title is now held by Schmidt.

In other first round action Saturday, Seixas eliminated Billy Talbert of New York 6-2, 6-0 and Schmidt defeated Irv Dorfman of New York 12-10, 6-2.

Schmidt and Seixas won the doubles crown from Savitt and Talbert 6-2, 6-3, yesterday.

Y Hockey Results

In the YMCA Prep hockey league over the weekend, Flying Tigers won over the Jets, 5-1, for their second win. Sky Rockets topped Thunderbirds, 5-1, and Sabers whipped the Flying Saucers, 5-1.

Rocca and Murphy Top Next Wrestling Show

Feb. 27 Date Is Set for Card

Antonino Rocca, the Barefoot Boy of the Argentine, and Skull Murphy of Ireland, have been signed for the wrestling feature Wednesday, Feb. 27, at the municipal auditorium.

Rocca, one of the biggest attractions in wrestling with his educated feet, has not been in Kingston for nearly two years.

Murphy, the animated cue ball, has made frequent appearances in Kingston and is a highly effective villain.

A Great Performer

Promoter Ted Bayly of Troy said he was elated to get Rocca and promised the fans an excellent supporting show.

"Rocca is one of the great names in wrestling," said Bayly, "and I'm sure the Kingston fans will be anxious to see him after a long absence."

Rocca and Ricki Starr, the new TV sensation, were credited with the most pulling power in attracting a tremendous throng of more than 19,000 persons to Madison Square Garden a few weeks ago.

The remainder of the card will be announced later.

CAGE QUIZ

By PAUL ARIZIN
Written for NEA Service

Question: With the clock almost run out on a tie game, a player goes up for a one-hander. He gets it off a fraction before the buzzer sounds. A defensive player, however, tips the shot—as the buzzer starts sounding. The shot goes in. Does it count?—Al Landa.

Answer: No. The shot had to go in without touching anybody.

Q. There has been criticism of the Boston Celtics' Bill Russell because he plays a "one man zone." Is there such a thing?—George Root.

A. As far as the books go, no. But for practical purposes, that's how Russell plays it. He is in the middle, moving for the man with the ball.

Q. National Basketball Association players play against each other many times over a season. Do the normally big scores rolled up mean that players still are able to trick each other despite this familiarity?—Donald Stone.

A. You don't fool anybody after the first couple of times around. The other fellow knows exactly what you are going to do. But you try to make your move perfectly and this plus the shooting eyes around the league adds up to high scoring.

Smith Whips Williams

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 17 (AP)—Eddie Smith, 163, of Chicago, scored a split decision over Al (Tiger) Williams, 158½, of Los Angeles, last night, in the 10-round main event at the Hollywood Legion Stadium.

In 22 innings of World Series pitching, Brooklyn's Don Newcombe has allowed 21 earned runs. Home runs accounted for 15 of the runs.

Battles Raging For Two Places In Hockey Race

By The Associated Press

With the Detroit Red Wings moving into a commanding lead atop the National Hockey League, interest today centered in the struggles for second and fourth places.

The Montreal Canadiens, who posted their first victory in eight games when they shaded the Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 last night, and the Boston Bruins, victims of a "lost" weekend, are waging the battle for second place.

Montreal, depite its recent ineffectiveness, holds a two-point advantage over Boston, which lost 6-5 to Chicago Saturday in a nationally televised game and also bowed to Detroit 6-2 Sunday.

The Canadiens, in turn, trail the Red Wings by eight points.

4th Place Battle

The New York Rangers and the Toronto Maple Leafs are the combatants for fourth place and the final Stanley Cup playoff berth. The Rangers pulled three points ahead of the Leafs by winning two games over the weekend while Toronto was losing twice.

New York nipped the Canadiens 2-1 Saturday night for the Rangers first regular season victory on Montreal ice since Jan. 30, 1954—A span of 21 games. The New Yorkers edged Toronto 3-2 last night after the Leafs had dropped a 3-1 verdict to Detroit Saturday. Toronto's defeat assured the Wings of a playoff spot for the 19th straight season.

The Rangers treated a capacity throng of 15,925 home fans to a come-from-behind thriller over the Leafs. After Danny Lewicki gained the equalizer in the third period, Dean Prenticee delivered the tie-breaker with less than six minutes left.

Hebert Edges Ed Furgol in Texas Open Golf

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 18 (AP)—Jay Hebert, the slender young pro from Louisiana, headed for Houston and the next stop on the golf tour today with a victory in the $20,000 Texas Open achieved by "the only shot that would have done it."

Hebert, 34-year-old hot-shot maker playing out of Sanford, Fla., 3-ironed to the green on the 185-yard 18th hole at Brackenridge Park and sank a 6-foot putt for a birdie to beat Ed Furgol, the St. Andrews, Ill., veteran by a stroke for first money in a rain-swept Texas Open yesterday. He had a 4-under-par 67 on the final round for a 72-hole total of 271—13 strokes under par.

Perfect Shot Did It

"It takes a perfect shot on this hole," said Hebert as he accepted the $2,800 check to make him the second leading money winner of the year. "I made it and I won."

Tying for third place were Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., and Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill., who had 68 and 66 respectively for 274 totals.

As the golf tour moves on to Houston for the $36,000 Houston Open, Hebert has climbed into second place in money winnings with $7,415. Doug Ford of Mahopac, N. Y., is the leader with $8,585.50.

LOADED "CIGARS"—These cigar-like devices are actually low-cost bomb dispensers for practice bombing runs. They are now in mass production for the U.S. Navy at Republic Aviation's Farmingdale, N.Y., plant. The cases are loaded with electronic equipment that simulates an actual A-bomb delivery. Each dispenser carries four of the miniature practice bombs and thus four "drops" can be made in one flight. Formerly, Navy fliers had to fly a separate mission for each practice bomb they dropped.

Agree on Pact

agreement on work conditions for checkers, carpenters and other crafts still must be settled, he said.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, sat in on the news conference which announced the ending of the strike. He flew here from Washington last week to take a personal hand in the negotiations.

He said it was possible that the longshoremen would return to work before a vote was taken on the new contract. His comment, however, drew no response from ILA officials.

Diverted Liners

The current walkout, in effect, is a continuation of a strike that lasted for nine days in November before the federal government obtained an injunction to end it. A Taft-Hartley act "cooling off" period of 80 days expired last Tuesday and the union resumed its strike.

The present strike, which caused railroads to halt shipments to east coast docks, reportedly alone cost a loss of three million dollars a day to business interests relying on the port of New York.

The tieup in New York, heightened by a harbor craft strike, caused several ocean liners to divert to other ports. The liners that did dock here without tugs found it necessary to unload passenger baggage without longshoremen's help.

One feature of the new agreement provides for a union dues checkoff system with the employer forwarding the funds to the ILA treasury.

County Vols Meeting Tuesday at Armory

The association said that, in treatment of both the confined law-breaker and the ex-prisoner returned to society, "the extremes of highly sentimental leniency and illogical treatment . . . must be avoided."

Fire on Nationalists

Taipei, Feb. 18 — Communist shore batteries fired 32 rounds at Nationalist patrol vessels in the Matsu area northwest of Formosa late Sunday night, defense headquarters reported today. A spokesman said the incident, the first in the area in 11 days, caused no casualties or damage. He did not say whether the patrol vessels returned the barrage.

Four of the big air freighters carrying 10 tons of supplies each made the flight. Aboard one plane was Adm. Jeruald Wright, commander in chief of the U. S. ## Ice Curbs Shipping

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 18 (AP)—Vast arctic ice fields have crept around the southeastern corner of Newfoundland to threaten shipping in Palcentia Bay and St. Mary's Bay on the south coast. A south coast ice blockade is almost unheard of even in the most severe winters. If it developed, it could seal off important ports for draggers working the Grand Banks as well as Argentina, a U. S. naval and coast guard base and the terminal of the ferry which brings freight from Sydney.

"Our gasolene truck has gone 65,000 miles without adding a drop of C-300 between crankcase drains." — "With its high detergency, C-300 enabled our buses to roll up 250,000 miles per unit before overhaul." (Quote from customer).
Owners of farm tractors, heavy-duty trucks and similar gasolene and Diesel-powered equipment not only express their satisfaction with Cities Service C-300 Series Motor Oils but depend on them to keep their operating costs down to rock-bottom levels.
They do the job better . . . more economically . . . because they are stable—resist heat—provide a tough film that protects vital engine parts against destructive friction.
Important! They help to keep the engine clean. Because they are detergent-type, heavy-duty oils, they actually minimize the formation of varnish, corrosive compounds, and high-temperature sludge . . . factors which contribute heavily to costly overhauls and loss of power.
Cities Service C-300 Oil has API Service Classification MS-DG
Other "C" Series Motor Oils have been especially designed to meet special operating conditions. Your Cities Service representative will be glad to furnish detailed information about them.
